"AMERICA FIRST," DECLARES WILSON, IN DISCUSSING WAR

President at the Associated Press Luncheon Gives His Idea of True Neutrality and of Duties Devolving on United States.

UNITED STATES IS FREE TO SERVE OTHER NATIONS

With No "Hampering Ambitions" This Country Is Bound to Play Important in Adjusting World Affairs When the Fighting Is Ended.

New York, April 20.—President Wilson today gave a definite and clear statement of the neutrality guiding on his administration during the war in Europe. He chose the occasion of the annual luncheon of the Associated Press for what he said he regarded as a statement of gravest importance to the American people.

The influence of the newspaper in moulding public opinion, Mr. Wilson said, prompted him to make clear his ideas of true neutrality, and in doing so, to impress on his hearers the importance of adhering strictly to truthfulness and honesty in the dissemination of the news.

Mr. Wilson seemed to weigh each word he uttered. The importance he attached to his statement was reflected in a request that no attempt be made to paraphrase his speech or to give it publicity until the official white house stenographer had transcribed it in full.

Distinction Awaits United States.

As the only great nation at present engaged in the war or suffering under the immediate influence of the war zone, Mr. Wilson declared that a great distinction awaited the United States when the hour of readjustment should come, provided this nation should prove to the world its self-control and self-mastery. The past had been difficult, the present was, and the future would be more difficult.

America, the president said, never would attempt to sit in judgment on another nation. No nation was fit to do that, he added. But America, free from hampering ambitions as a world power, free of a lust for territory, calm, cool and without self interest, must be appealed to to assist in the reconstructing processes of peace.

The neutrality of the United States, Mr. Wilson said, had a higher basis than a petty desire to keep out of trouble.

"There is something so much greater to do than fight," he said. "We must think of America before we think of Europe, in order that America may be fit to be Europe's friend when the days of tested friendship comes. The test of friendship is not sympathy with one side or the other, but gratification at efficiency registered by citizens against the police department or police chief at London." [illegible] meeting of the probe committee of the police board.

This meeting is the first of a series of meetings of this committee which will investigate every phase of police work. The meeting tonight is specially for hearing complaints from citizens who desire better police protection.

Chief Beavers has predicted that none of the prominent business men who have so heartlessly lambasted him through the columns of the press as [illegible] will come to police station to register their complaints in writing before the probe committee, which is made up of five members of the police board.

Police Commissioner S. A. Wardlaw, who is chairman of the probe committee, said last night that up to the present he had received no formal complaints against the police.

"The meeting will be set for no other reason than to give citizens a chance to register in writing and in person their complaints against the police department and the police chief," said Mr. Wardlaw.

"If there are no charges by citizens tonight, the probe committee will then investigate every department of the police and see what recommendations can be made to improve matters.

"The police board investigators will be glad to hear complaints from any citizen."

Following tonight's meeting there will be numerous other meeting of the probe committee.

The Spring of the Year

Despite the fact that April is known as the month of showers, it very often belies its reputation, and beautiful, balmy days succeed each other with surprising regularity.

With the rebirth of Spring and the newness of life, comes a desire to discard the dark, practical styles of somber Winter for brighter, more joyous costumes.

Shop windows bloom with distracting hats; counters are piled high with colorful materials; shoes in new designs are shown to great advantage; dainty blouses are temptingly displayed.

SHE SINGS HERE, BUT HEART IS WITH A SOLDIER ABROAD

So When Opera Tour Ends in Atlanta, Mme. Delaunois Will Try to Catch Early Steamship Back to France and to Her Warrior-Novelist Husband.

RAYMONDE DELAUNOIS, Who sings in "Tales of Hoffman" here, and then goes from Atlanta to Europe in search of her soldier husband.

The management of the sale of opera tickets, at the Cable company on Broad street, and Phillips & Crew on Pryor street, announces that all tickets reserved so far which have not been called for by Friday afternoon at 6 o'clock will be turned back for resale.

Tickets will be on sale at these places the remainder of the week. The uncalled for tickets will be placed on sale Saturday morning, if not called for Friday afternoon.

When the Metropolitan Opera Company closes its season with its week's stay in Atlanta, ending May 1, a young principal who will try to catch the earliest steamer back to France is Mme. Raymonde Delaunois, Belgian, mezzo-soprano.

Not that her haste is due to a dislike to Americans. Jamais! But somewhere over in those miles of trenches is a soldier husband who last August left her to join the colors for La Belle France, and of whom she afterward had only one glimpse before she joined Gatti Casazza's singing forces in Milan to sail for this strange country.

Louis Thomas, she knows, was wounded in the shoulder by shrapnel in the fight along the Marne, but it was a slight hurt, a bagatelle, and he refused to retire further than the field hospital. He was soon in the fight again, and such was his valor that within a short week he was made corporal, sergeant and sous-lieutenant. But where he is stationed is kept a secret. All his wife knows is that he is sound again and hopefully awaits the day when she shall greet him.

A Shattered Dream.

The ultimate goal for most operatic stars in Europe is the Metropolitan, in New York, and Mme. Delaunois was highly pleased last summer when her dream came true, the opportunity was offered to her. But then came that terrible war, and voila! the fam- [illegible] were spoiled. Her husband, though only thirty years old, is the author of two novels and a volume of poetry. He had planned to come to America with his wife and—who knows?—perhaps write a book about those Americans.

Their season in America was to be gay. Instead, it has been tres difficile for Mme. Delaunois to keep cheerful, so hard was it to enjoy facing the big Metropolitan audiences with the thought always uppermost that at the same moment a certain soldier was facing hostile bullets. Still, Mme. Delaunois loves her husband the more because he has done his duty. She loves him even more because he is "the American type of man," sturdy, tall and straight.

Another sorrow to the young singer is the fact that her grandmother died from shock when the Germans entered Mons. Beyond this information and the message that her mother was well a few months ago, Mme. Delaunois knows nothing of her parents' welfare.

A Letter a Day.

She gets six letters a week from her husband, but every indication of where he is stationed is blotted out. He writes daily from the front and mails the batch together. On these missives she thrives; at night she reads and rereads them—un, deux, trois, quatre, cinq, six—until she knows them by heart and until the next batch arrives. And every day Mme. Delaunois writes until she has her six collected for mailing.

And such a frail, pale person is Mme. Delaunois, with all this to shoulder! She is the heroic type of singer, but the petite, chic sort. Yet in conversation she is all animation with a happy ingratiating smile. In the Metropolitan she has sung only in Boris' and Tria,' but in Europe her best liked parts are Mignon and Carmen. She was born in Paris and brought up in Mons.

In Atlanta Mme. Delaunois will sing the role of Niclaus in "The Tales of Hoffman," at the Tuesday matinee.

Husband, on battle front, writes six letters weekly to wife, who reads and rereads them for inspiration; answers each of them.

PROBE OF POLICE TO START TONIGHT

Predicted Citizens Will Not Make Charges Before the Committee at the First Meeting.

Predictions on every hand indicate that the first official meeting of the deficiency registered by citizens against the police department or police chief at London [illegible] meeting of the probe committee of the police board.

Services on Street Lead to Conversion Of World Traveler

D. M. Armitage, Prominent in London Literary and Social Circles, Finds New Faith in Atlanta.

D. M. Armitage, the English writer, author of "Toilers of the Deep" and other stories, who passed through Atlanta on a tramping trip from one end of the United States to another, was converted by a Salvation army song on Marietta street Saturday night, although the greatest preachers in the biggest churches and cathedrals of the world had failed to convince him that he should become a Christian.

Mr. Armitage left a comfortable position in London society and English literary circles to make a hobo trip across the United States as the result of a $25,000 wager. He has traveled all over the world and seen all of its principal cities. He was in Atlanta for two days and was standing on Marietta street when the open-air service of the Salvation army, with Brigadier W. A. Crawford in charge, was begun.

First the song attracted his attention and then the simple words of Brigadier Crawford telling the gospel story happened to reach his heart. He went with the brigadier to the Salvation army hall and there took his seat on the mourners' bench.

The day following he left Atlanta happier than he had ever been before in his life, he said, and declared that he regarded his conversion in Atlanta as by far the most important event that had befallen him on his adventurous trip.

JOHN WESLEY GAINES PUT UNDER PEACE BOND

Washington, April 20.—John Wesley Gaines, former congressman from Tennessee, now secretary of the International Foundry commission, was convicted today in police court by a jury of an assault upon a Pennsylvania avenue haberdasher in a dispute over a fancy waistcoat. Mr. Gaines gave a bond to keep the peace and was released.

ATLANTA IS SELECTED BY METHODIST WOMEN

Little Rock, Ark., April 20.—The Women's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, in session here tonight, pledged $220,475 for missionary work during 1916. Atlanta, Ga., was selected as next year's meeting place.

W. U. Rates Upheld.

Washington, April 20.—The Western Union Telegraph company's standard message rates between New York and San Francisco, and its cable rates from New York to points in England, were pronounced not unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory today by the interstate commerce commission. The rate to San Francisco was attacked by W. N. White & Co., produce dealers in New York, because of the lower rates for press dispatches.

U. S. ARMY AIRSHIP USED AS A TARGET BY THE MEXICANS

Carranza Forces in Matamoros Open Fire on Biplane as It Makes a Flight Over Brownsville.

Brownsville, Texas, April 20.—A United States army biplane flying over Fort Brown, near here, was fired upon late today from the Mexican side of the Rio Grande. About twenty rifle shots were directed against the machine, while simultaneously a machine gun on the Mexican side from Fort Brown fired about fifty shots directed, it is believed in army circles here, at the air craft. The machine landed safely.

Matamoros, opposite here, is occupied by Carranza troops.

Aeroplane Not Struck.

The biplane was piloted by Lieut. R. Q. Jones, with Lieut. T. D. Milling as passenger-observer. Both were unaware of the incident until they landed, about 5:30 o'clock. The aeroplane was not struck, but one bullet hit the army wireless station at Fort Brown and another was picked up near the city hall in this city.

The air craft, which was sent here recently for border patrol duty, had made a circle near the Rio Grande when fired upon. Upon making a second circle and when within about 200 feet of the river the battle of the machine gun was heard. All the shots were fired over American territory.

Colonel A. P. Blockson, commandant at Fort Brown, has reported the matter by wireless to Major General Frederick Funston, commander of the department of the south, at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio.

Drunken Officer Responsible.

Jose Z. Garza, Carranza consul in Brownsville, who made a personal investigation, reported to United States army officers that the firing was done by a few Carranza soldiers in command of an intoxicated sub-lieutenant. This officer, according to consul, stated he had been instructed several weeks ago to fire at any aircraft appearing. He said, however, he did not know he was firing upon an American machine, believing it to be one of the Villa aeroplanes. He denied that the machine gun had been turned on the biplane, but admitted the rifle fire. The sub-lieutenant was placed under arrest.

General E. P. Nafarrate, commander at Matamoros, is absent from his post, but the Carranza consul gave assurance that the sub-lieutenant and others implicated in the firing would be punished.

Mr. Garza apologized to Colonel A. P. Blocksom, in command of United States troops here, in behalf of General Nafarrate.

VILLA TO MAKE STAND AT AGUAS CALIENTES.

El Paso, Texas, April 20.—General Villa was reported today to be fortifying Aguas Calientes to make a stand there against Obregon's victorious Carranza troops. It was indicated that Villa had abandoned his base at Irapuarto.

RUN DOWN BY AUTO, AGED WOMAN DIES; CHAUFFEUR CAUGHT

Mrs. Virginia Schley, Age 75, Aunt of Hero of Santiago, Victim in Front of Own Home.

H. C. WIGGINS CLAIMS ACCIDENT UNAVOIDABLE

Driver of Death Car Went to Hospital With Mangled Body—Woman Did Not Speak After Accident.

Mrs. Virginia Schley, age 75, an aunt of Admiral William Schley, the hero of Santiago, Cuba, was run over by a fast-speeding auto in front of her home, 500 Peachtree street, last night about 7 o'clock.

She died an hour later from her injuries, a broken left arm and concussion of the brain, at the Davis-Fischer sanitarium, where she was removed by R. P. Snow, a clerk in Aiken Brothers' grocery store, 657 Peachtree street, and a Mr. Matthews, both of whom witnessed the accident.

A large crowd quickly assembled and viewed the mangled form of the helpless woman.

Eye-witnesses state that she was dragged thirty feet by the machine before it stopped.

H. C. Wiggins, of 524 Woodward avenue, a Decatur railway clerk, driver of the machine, also went to the hospital with the injured woman. He later reported to Officer Bowman, giving him his address, and went home. He was driving a Ford car.

Driver of Car Under Bond.

When Night Chief E. L. Jett heard the details of the accident he had officers go to his home and arrest Wiggins, placing him under a bond of $1,000.

Mrs. Schley and her son, L. W. Schley, a Decatur druggist, reside with their niece, Carrie B. Smith, 500 Peachtree street. Mrs. Schley had been out visiting and was returning to her home when the accident occurred.

Mr. Schley and Mrs. Smith got off a Peachtree street car shortly after the accident occurred. Mrs. Smith was hurrying taken to the hospital at the time, and, although he witnessed the commotion, he said he was unaware that it was his mother who had been injured. Robin Adair, who witnessed the accident and who was among the first to lend a helping hand to the injured lady to the hospital, went to the Smith residence shortly afterward and notified Mr. Schley that his mother had been fatally hurt. Several of the members of the Smith household, who were sitting on the front porch of the residence, witnessed the grim tragedy.

They state that Mrs. Schley never uttered a cry, but that she complained little after being taken to the hospital.

It was 11 o'clock before the police could learn that Mrs. Schley had died. Officers W. A. Carroll and H. B. Ford- [illegible] son were detailed to the case when Captain W. F. Terry heard of the accident. They visited the Davis-Fischer sanitarium to ascertain if any one was to blame for the accident, and see if an arrest should follow. Quite a scene was created before the officers learned the particulars.

Formerly of Augusta.

Mrs. Schley was formerly of Augusta, Ga., where she lived for many years. Besides her son, she is survived by two daughters, who live in Augusta, Mrs. W. A. Wallace and Mrs. Carswell. She was the widow of Colonel Robert Schley, who was a cotton merchant at Augusta.

Her body was removed to Patterson's undertaking parlors, and will be sent to Augusta today for funeral and interment in the old family burial ground.

Wiggins told police officers that the accident was unavoidable, saying that Mrs. Schley stepped from behind another auto in front of his machine. He said he was not driving fast.

From Beauty Shop She Escapes Thro' Window to Fill Date

Large and Appreciative Audience From Ansley Rathskeller Fails to Dismay Miss Hughes, Locked in Beauty Parlor.

As has been previously remarked by some one else, where there is a will there is a way, although it leads a pretty young woman through a narrow window before a considerable "audience" in a prominent downtown hotel.

Miss Louise Hughes had an engagement for dinner last night at 7:45 o'clock.

At 7:40 o'clock Miss Mae Davenport, one of the beauty doctoresses of the Ansley hotel beauty parlors, had just finished manicuring the dainty pink fingers of Miss Hughes and put the last artful polish in her marcel waves. With a choice bit of gossip she started to open the door, but, sacre bleu, the door would not open!

All efforts to open the door proved unavailing, and finally the attention of Will L. Muldrew, doorman of the Rathskeller, was attracted. He crawled through a narrow window just outside the Rathskeller entrance, but his efforts to influence upon the lock proved as futile as ever.

Time fled and 7:45 o'clock came. Nay, 8 o'clock was at hand, and somewhere a young man was awaiting.

The window offered the only avenue of escape. But meanwhile diners in the Rathskeller, filled with delight and excitement, strolled leisurely forth and lingered.

Well, what was a young woman to do in such a case, anyhow? Miss Hughes took a look at the "audience" outside the window, took a look at her watch and made up her mind.

She climbed through very gracefully. The "audience," while appreciative, conducted itself with proper decorum.

Roosevelt Vows Barnes Begged for Protection Of Business Interests To Get Campaign Funds

The Colonel Says Barnes Argued That It Was Essential to Be Kind to Big Business in Order to Get Money to Keep Up Party Organization.

YOU CAN'T HAVE LEADERS UNLESS YOU HAVE MONEY, BARNES TOLD ROOSEVELT

The Colonel Also Swore That Barnes Said "The People Are Not Fit to Govern Themselves"—Roosevelt Sketched His Career, Talked to Counsel for Both Sides, and Finally Got Into an Argument With the Judge.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 20.—Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, went on the witness stand in the supreme court here today and testified in an effort to prove his contention that he was justified in causing the publication of a statement on which William Barnes sued him to recover $50,000 for alleged libel.

Under oath, Colonel Roosevelt said that the former chairman of the republican state committee had urged him not to antagonize men of large interests with a contention unfair to both the democratic and republican parties so that they would be protected.

Barnes and Big Business.

Mr. Barnes told him, Colonel Roosevelt swore, that it was essential to protect big business interests, because unless they were protected they would not make contributions to the party failing to protect them, and that without such contributions it was impossible to carry on the organization. Without organization, leaders and bosses, the former president quoted Mr. Barnes as saying, party government would be impossible.

Colonel Roosevelt also quoted Mr. Barnes as telling him that "the people are not fit to govern themselves. They have got to be governed by the party organization, and you cannot run an organization; you cannot have leaders, unless you have money."

Colonel Roosevelt was called to the stand as a witness for the plaintiff, after a technical question of proper qualification of the witness and defendant had been brought up by the lawyers. He was asked just one question. That was whether he was defendant in the action. He replied in the affirmative and was then made a witness in his own behalf.

Colonel Sketches Career.

The colonel sketched his political career, and with considerable pride discussed the regiment of Rough Riders he organized for service in the Spanish war. He told where the recruits came from, where they gathered, where they went and just what they did. He even described the first brush with the Spanish forces and would have related orders he had given the men under him had not counsel for the plaintiff objected. Then he gave detailed testimony about his relations with the late Senator Thomas C. Platt, with Mr. Barnes and conversations he had with both these men on various occasions. He will continue his testimony tomorrow.

Colonel Roosevelt talked to the counsel for both sides, offered suggestions and entered into a discussion of more than one point with Justice William S. Andrews, presiding, whom he addressed as "Judge." He was entirely at his ease. He cut all his words off shortly, except when he mentioned the name of Mr. Barnes. He drew out the name of his opponent and put a peculiar pronunciation upon the last syllable.

Mr. Barnes himself appeared much interested in the first part of Colonel Roosevelt's testimony. As it progressed, however, the plaintiff in the action seemed to lose interest and he first retired from a seat close to the witness stand to one farther away, and then he left the room.

Mr. Barnes' attorneys had rested before Colonel Roosevelt was called to the stand. They completed presentation of their case in twenty minutes.

Colonel Takes Stand Smiling.

When the colonel's name was called he arose from his seat at the table occupied by his counsel and smilingly walked to the witness chair.

In reply to a question he said he was the man who made the statement complained of. He added:

"I am 58 years old and have a wife and six children."

In reply to other questions, he recited in a firm clear voice the story of his early life, and of his political career. He told of his appointment on the civil service commission, to the office of police commissioner of New York, and assistant secretary of the navy. He then told of organizing with General Wood the Rough Rider regiment.

Mr. Barnes changed his seat so he could watch his opponent while he was telling of the work of the Rough Riders in Cuba.

Mr. Ivins, Mr. Barnes' attorney, objected to this line of testimony, and Mr. Bowers, who was questioning Mr. Roosevelt, said he was trying to show

SHARP FIGHTING AT MANY POINTS ON WESTERN FRONT

The British Success at Hill 60 Declared by Field Marshal French to Be an Important One.

RAID ON RHINE POINTS BY THE FRENCH AIRMEN

Great Forage Stores Destroyed at Mannheim—Fifty Incendiary Shells Are Dropped by Germans on Rheims.

London, April 20.—In the west the armies are battling at isolated points. The French war office reports that fifty incendiary shells have been dropped by the Germans on Rheims. French aerial squadrons have attacked points along the Rhine, have bombarded several stations and have set fire to great forage stores at Mannheim, the buildings and contents being destroyed, according to a Zurich dispatch.

Further details also were published today of the British capture of Hill 60, near Ypres. Very severe fighting, in which both sides suffered heavy losses, took place at this point. The British success is declared by Field Marshal French to be an important one, as it gives the British guns command of a considerable area occupied by the Germans and paves the way for an attack on the passages of the Lys, by means of which the towns of Lille, Roubaix and Tourcoing can be approached.

Along the rest of the western front there has been considerable fighting at several points, but no battles of importance have occurred.

LITTLE NEWS FROM EAST.

Since the brief review issued a few days ago by the Russian war office of Carpathian operations, in which it was stated that the Russians held the principal chain of mountains for an extent of about 75 miles and were strengthening their positions, little news has come through respecting the operations in that territory. German newspaper correspondents assert that the Russian offensive in that region has come to an end. They declare there has been no recent change in the situation.

According to Petrograd, the Russians have been busy repulsing Austro-German attacks in the direction of Stry and in the approach of Lupkow pass, and have themselves captured another height on the eastern Roszanka chain of the Carpathians.

News comes from German Southwest Africa of another successful operation by General Louis Botha's army, which has occupied the important town and railway junction of Keetmanshop, which is a German base in the southern part of the colony.

AUSTRIAN TROOPS READY FOR ITALY

Dual Monarchy Rushes Large Forces to Italian Frontier—Nevertheless, Peace Rumors Are Current in Rome.

Rome, April 20.—(Via Paris.)—Reports received here today from Austria say the dual monarchy is hurriedly gathering troops on the Italian frontier to face a possible invasion by Italian soldiers.

A large contingent of Austrian troops, the reports say, have been quartered at Monfalcone, Ronchi and Sagrado. The Austrians also are said to have strongly fortified the whole line of the Isonzo river with entrenchments, behind which batteries are in position.

ITALY IS WAITING FOR AUSTRIAN ACTION.

Paris, April 20.—Italy some time ago fixed April 20 (today) as the latest date for the consideration of any proposals Austria might have to make, according to a report current in Rome, says a dispatch from The Figaro's correspondent. Baron de Macchio, the Austrian ambassador, already has given notice to embassy servants who now are paid daily, it is said, and the same is true of the payment of tradesmen's bills for goods supplied the embassy.

The Figaro's dispatch declares it is stated in Vatican circles that the visit made to the pope a few days ago by Prince von Buelow, the German ambassador, was to bid farewell to the pontiff, as the diplomat believes his departure from Rome is imminent.

RUMORS OF PEACE CURRENT IN ROME.

Rome, April 20.—Within the past 24 hours persistent reports have arisen in Rome that a general peace in Europe may be concluded at a not distant date.

These reports cannot at present be ascribed to a definite source, but they are generally in high quarters and are given heed by careful observers of international politics.

It is pointed out that Rome is an excellent field for the conduct of peace negotiations, as Prince von Buelow, one of the ablest of German diplomats, is in Rome as ambassador to Italy, while official relations between Italy and Germany, as well as between Italy and the triple entente are cordial.

In certain quarters here the idea prevails that the advent of spring has not seen the resumption of aggressive hostilities as had been promised, and that is regarded as significant.

Sofia is being regarded with much interest. Efforts are being made by representatives of the belligerents to induce King Ferdinand to announce his decision, the importance of which is recognized fully in Rome. Should Bulgaria side with the Teutonic allies it would be difficult for Rumania to make war on Austria-Hungary, for she would then be subject to attack by Bulgaria as well as by Turkish troops coming through Bulgarian territory.

In this connection, a prominent diplomist today said:

"Once more is the fate of the Balkans in the hands of Bulgaria. Indeed, this time her decision may have great weight on the general development of the whole war."

VENIZELOS GREETED AT ALEXANDRIA.

London, April 20.—An Alexandria dispatch to Reuter's says former Premier Venizelos, of Greece, arrived there this morning, and was greeted at the quay by a wildly enthusiastic crowd. He was welcomed officially by Prince Fuad, brother of Prince Hussein, the Sultan of Egypt, together with British and French officials.

No preliminary announcement was made of M. Venizelos decision to visit Alexandria. The Athens correspondent of the Petit Journal of Paris, in a dispatch sent Sunday, said the former premier had informed him he proposed to spend a fortnight on the island of Samos, after which he would leave for America.

M. Venizelos left Greece because he regarded as an insult the recent decision of the king of certain statements which the former premier had made regarding his foreign policy. M. Venizelos' cabinet favored the intervention of Greece in the war and resigned when King Constantine and his advisers decided to adhere to a policy of neutrality.

TURKISH WARSHIPS WRECKED BY MINES

Paris, April 20.—Two Turkish torpedo boat destroyers were blown up, says a Saloniki dispatch, while passing through a mine belt which Russian ships had succeeded in laying across the entrance to the Bosphorus, while the Turkish fleet was cruising in the Black sea. The explosions caused by the destruction of the two Turkish boats gave warning to the remainder of the fleet, which made a hatch ways, was obliged to remain in the Black sea because no mine sweepers were available.

BRITISH DESTROYED THEIR OWN SUBMARINE.

London, April 20.—The British admiralty announced officially today that the British submarine E-15 was destroyed in the Dardanelles by British pilot boats.

The text of the announcement follows:

"The submarine E-15, which grounded on Kephez Point last Saturday, appears to have been in danger of falling into the enemy's hands in a serviceable condition. Great efforts were made by the Turks to secure her. Attempts to destroy her by long range fire of battleships failed.

"During the night of the 18th two picket boats—that of the Triumph, under Lieutenant Commander Eric Robinson, who commanded the expedition, assisted by Lieutenant Geoffrey Brooke Webb, R. N. R., and Midshipman John Woolley, and that of the Majestic, under Lieutenant Claude Godwin, both manned by volunteer crews—attacked the steamer. The boats were subjected to a very heavy fire, estimated at not less than 20 rounds from Fort No. 8, which was only a few hundred yards distant, and a number of small guns at short range. Notwithstanding this, the submarine was torpedoed and rendered useless.

"The Majestic's picket boat was holed and sunk, but the crew were saved by the other boat, and the only casualty was one man, who died of wounds.

"Vice Admiral de Robeck speaks in the highest terms of all concerned in this gallant enterprise. Lieutenant Commander Eric Robinson has been promoted to a commander in the admiralty and a report has been called for on the individual services of other officers and men with a view to their recognition."

A Constantinople dispatch Sunday said that the British submarine E-15 had run ashore in the Dardanelles while reconnoitering. She was shelled by Turkish battery, some of her crew killed or wounded and others taken prisoners by the Turks.

PROTEST BY BRITAIN ABOUT PRINZ EITEL

London, April 20.—That the British government has protested against some of the facilities afforded the German cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich at Newport News was disclosed today in a reply in the house of commons made by Sir Edward Grey, to a question asked by Commander Carlyon Bellairs, who recently was returned to parliament at a bye-election.

Commander Bellairs asked whether permission to repair the cruiser "included the use of the port for cleaning her hull, thereby increasing her speed chances of escape from the British cruisers."

Sir Edward Grey said that before her internment the Eitel Friedrich had "had her bottom cleaned and coated with a non-fouling composition while in dry dock in Newport News, thus considerably increasing her speed.

"His majesty's government," Sir Edward continued, "protested on the ground that an increase in her speed radius of action as the case might be, was an increase of her fighting force, such as article 17 of The Hague convention forbids. The United States government refused to admit this, considering that any damage sustained by the action of the sea and not inflicted by an enemy may be made good. They also called attention to the provision that the local authorities of neutral powers shall decide what repairs are necessary."

FLEET MAY NOT PASS THROUGH PANAMA CANAL

Washington, April 20.—It developed in naval circles today that officials are by no means certain the Atlantic fleet can pass through the Panama canal early in July, as planned. Some parts of the canal are not deep enough now to permit the passage of dreadnaughts in safety, and there is no assurance that dredging will be completed in time for the proposed cruise to San Francisco.

When plans for sending the fleet through the waterway were announced, Governor Goethals declined to promise that the feat would be possible. Officials hoped, however, to see the channels dredged to their full depth by the middle of the summer. Captain Hugh Rodman, marine superintendent, and Governor Goethals, of the canal, have been asked to report immediately on conditions in the waterway.

GREAT OPPORTUNITY FOR UNITED STATES

Washington, April 20.—The special committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at the end of two days of conference with officials of the state department and the department of commerce, announced itself today as of the unanimous opinion that the United States faces the greatest opportunity of its history for the development of foreign trade.

The committee believes congress should appropriate more liberally for development of foreign commerce, and discussed plans to that end with Secretary Redfield. The committee is composed of representative business men from all sections of the country.

REBUKE GIVEN PEARY BY SECRETARY BRYAN

Explorer's Prediction About U. S. Control of Continent Little Less Than Crime.

Washington, April 20.—Secretary Bryan said today that before criticising Rear Admiral Peary's recent speech on possible territorial expansion of the United States he had written the admiral for verification of his remarks and received an authenticated copy. Mr. Bryan's comment on the speech, as given out today at the state department, said in part:

"Rear Admiral Peary, speaking at a republican banquet in New York recently, said: 'We are going and still.' A hundred years hence, we either shall be obliterated as a nation or we shall occupy the entire North American world segment.' It is to be regretted that a man known to the public should so much enjoy indulging his imagination as to be indifferent to the effect which his utterances may have upon the country in relations with other nations.

"Admiral Peary does not, of course, claim to be inspired—he is simply expressing his private opinion—but his name, unfortunately, gives wings to his words. He fixes one hundred years as the period during which it will be necessary for this government to secure control of the continent, or disappear. Such a prediction from an obscure man would be foolish; from one in his position, it is little less than a crime. His prediction is based upon an assumption which has been demonstrated to be false—namely, that a nation must constantly expand or go into decay.

"It has been a century since the boundary line between the United States and Canada was established, and yet both countries are more prosperous today than they were a hundred years ago. This country shares the larger part of North America with several Spanish-speaking republics and there is no reason why there should be any dispute between them in a century or in many centuries. The idea that a nation can grow only geographically is as un-American as it is untrue.

Admiral Peary on reading this comment declined to comment, but pointed out that he first presented the idea "that the entire North American world segment is the eventual destiny of the United States," in a public address in London in November, 1903, when he said:

"The attainment of the north pole is particularly an object for American pride and patriotism. The North American world segment is our home, our natural, ultimate destiny. Its bounds are the isthmus and the pole. We are negotiating for the isthmus (the Hay-Bunau-Varilla treaty was signed November 18, 1903). We must find and mark the pole."

Y. W. C. A. ASSISTED 500 WOMEN IN 1914 TO GOOD POSITIONS

Industrial depression made particularly heavy in 1914 the work of the employment department of the Y. W. C. A., according to Miss Molly Courtney, chairman. This committee helped 500 women get positions during the year, as shown in a report at the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Lucretia Block, chairman of the gymnasium committee, reported 250 members enrolled in the classes with 100 in the matrons, business women and high school girls.

Mrs. F. J. Paxon reported that a laundry in the sewing room had been fitted out in the boarding home on Baker street which is filled to its capacity with fifteen women.

A committee on industrial classes was formed, with Mrs. A. R. Colcord as chairman, to arrange for a sewing workshop at the Y. W. C. A. to teach sewing.

Two new members were welcomed, Mrs. R. T. Dorsey and Mrs. Ernest Dallis.

The tennis classes, which are an exceptionally pleasant feature in the work, will open May 1 at the headquarters, No. 54 Houston street.

DRUG ADDICTS CROWD PITTSBURG HOSPITAL

Pittsburg, Pa., April 20.—Local hospitals and sanitariums are taxed to their capacity caring for persons addicted to the use of drugs, according to figures compiled by the Allegheny County Medical society. An investigation just completed by the society shows that the treatment of drug users in Pittsburg alone has increased five-fold since the enactment of the Harrison anti-drug act and that they number several thousand.

FOR FREE CHINA BRITAIN STANDS

Sir Edward Grey Says British Government Will Insist on Integrity and Independence of Oriental Republic.

London, April 20.—Preservation of the common interests of all the powers in China by insurance of the independence and the integrity of the Chinese republic and the principle of equal opportunities for the commerce and industry of all nations in China, was declared today by Sir Edward Grey, foreign secretary, to be the policy of the British government.

Sir Edward spoke in the house of commons. He was asked several questions concerning the negotiations between China and Japan, but replied that while the negotiations still were proceeding, he was not able to make a detailed statement. Speaking generally, however, he declared the policy of the British government in China continued to be governed by the terms of the Anglo-Japanese agreement as defined above.

The foreign secretary added that the government was in close touch with diplomatic circles in China and Japan, and with commercial bodies interested in the far east, and the house might rest assured that the government would endeavor to secure, to the best of its ability, an open door to British commerce in all parts of China.

UNITED STATES FOR OPEN DOOR.

Washington, April 20.—While declining to discuss in detail the American policy toward the Japanese-China negotiations, Secretary Bryan said today the United States government still stood firmly on the announcement made at the beginning of the Wilson administration of its purpose to support the policy of the open door and freedom of commercial opportunity in the far east.

Sir Edward Grey's statement of a similar character in the British parliament today, officials believe, means that Great Britain's position has undergone no change and that the principle of the open door will continue to be the aim of the powers.

The Japanese government has given assurances that it has no desire or plan to violate either the open door policy or China's territorial integrity, how far its present demands on China may be considered as infringing on these principles can be answered only by a knowledge of the details of the negotiations, something which here are unwilling to discuss because of the injunction of secrecy placed on the matter by the Japanese government.

Officials here appear optimistic over the progress of the negotiations, indicating a belief that the difficulties at Pekin may be adjusted satisfactorily without requiring further communication between the United States and Japan.

IT'S CUT-OFF DAY ONCE EVERY MONTH AT THE CITY HALL

It was "Cut-Off Day" in Atlanta yesterday.

Most anybody knows about Tax day, Memorial day, Arbor day, Thanksgiving day, election day and any common holiday, but only those who have fallen since Uncle Jimmy Jones began to observe "Cut-Off day."

What is "Cut-Off day"?

If you really don't know, just visit the waterworks office in the city hall on the 20th of any month and watch them cut St. John at the telephone on "Cut-Off day." It is said, he leaves off the "Saint" from the front of his name as being out of keeping with his state of mind.

On the 20th of each month the water is cut off from the premises of every person who has failed to pay his water bill for the preceding month. Many of them, just the moment he or she finds there is no water, rushes to a telephone and calls up St. John. No, they do not all talk sweetly and pleasantly. What kind of talk they have to say would not do for an addition to a prayer book.

Tuesday of this week was the 20th of the month and, when the answered 743 calls and a few more belated ones are expected on Wednesday.

Eddie Carroll.

Eddie Carroll, 25 years of age, died last night at the city hospital, after a short illness. The body was removed to the chapel of Greenleaf & Bond, where it will remain until April 23, when the funeral and interment will take place.

Mr. Carroll is a member of a clan of Irish horse traders whose custom it is to have funerals on only one day of the year—April 23. Members of his family have a camp on Bellwood avenue.

Nominating committee: A. McKay, Salt Lake Tribune; S. A. Perkins, Tacoma Ledger; A. J. Blethen, Seattle Times. Auditing committee: John F. Carroll, Portland Telegram.

Lehman on the Press.

At the afternoon session the members were addressed by Frederick W. Lehman, former solicitor general of the United States. Mr. Lehman in his address said:

"The original attitude of the law toward the press was one of repression. It was a governor of Virginia who thanked God that they had no printing press in the colony, and would not have for a hundred years. It was the general court of Massachusetts which suppressed, upon its first appearance, the first newspaper attempted to be published in what is now the United States.

"The eighteenth century brought with it an increasing sense of individual worth and dignity which insisted upon finding expression for its thought. Of course that freedom was accompanied with responsibility for its due exercise. We do not undertake to punish the publication of matter offensive to public decency, as we require that that which is paid for shall appear as paid material, and in these days when John Company has taken the place of John Smith and we don't know who John Company signifies, we must have some manifestation of that also.

"There are two possible systems of news gathering; one to deal with it as a purely commercial enterprise for profit and the other by a co-operative institution like the Associated Press in which any element of immediate profit to the association itself is left out of the account.

"With a membership like yours, distributed through all the states of the union, representing every shade of religious belief and of political belief and every variety of commercial and industrial interest, there is but one tenure of office possible to those who manage its affairs, and that is good conduct approved by substantially all of the members of the association.

No Is Libels Carried by A. P.

"News cannot be reported without every day something being said disparaging of some individual and libelous if untrue. In the fifteen years' history of the present Associated Press it has not been mulcted in damages for a single dollar, and yet it is subject to prosecution for libel for every word libelous that its report may have contained because its transmission of its news reports to its members is just as much a publication as the printing of the same news by the newspaper afterward. And today there stands against it but a single suit for libel and that predicated upon a report made by it of what one publication said of another public man, and not upon the ground of misrepresenting what was said.

"It is objected that the Associated Press is a monopoly. If so, it has not succeeded, as monopolies usually do, in restricting output. We publish more newspapers in the United States than in all the rest of the world beside.

What Is News?

"But it is said that the members monopolize their news for their own columns, and don't open them to those who are not members. What is news? Roughly speaking, news is the first report of an event of public and current interest. News signifies nothing in the world except personal service. A man has as much right to say what shall be done with a 'scoop' as Caruso has to the use of his voice. To receive everybody who publishes a paper to membership would be to destroy the association itself, because while there is much that may go into a newspaper that may be news routine, as market reports, still every man wishes to make his paper a distinctive publication, and if there is nothing distinctive in its general news report, a newspaper will become indifferent and undertake to gain a distinctive quality of something altogether aside from the budget of news furnished by the Associated Press and it seems to me that an essential condition of maintaining a co-operative news-gathering association is that association shall have the right to determine its own membership.

There Is no Monopoly.

"While the Associated Press has always had a very large proportion of the leading newspapers of the country, it has never had them all. If it had them all or substantially all, then the objection that it is a monopoly in the very nature of the case, passes out of view. The general plan of the organization has been approved by the attorney general, allowing the association to discriminate, and to determine its own membership.

"But the attorney general found that in one respect, namely, in the power given to the board of directors to require members to desist from purchasing news from any other agency, you had perhaps trenched upon the law. The effect of that opinion and your action here this morning in amending your by-laws to conform to that opinion has been to bring your professions up to the standard of your practice. And now profession and practice are in harmony with the law, and you have before you, I hope, a long and unbroken career of usefulness to the public, and prosperity for yourselves."

$200,000,000 WAR LOAN FOR DUAL MONARCHY

Berlin, April 28.—(Via London.)—The Vossische Zeitung announces that Austria-Hungary is about to float a new war loan of $200,000,000 in Berlin. The proposal is to issue treasury bonds payable after the war.

FRANK'S ATTORNEYS CONFER ON APPEAL

Thought That No Time Will Be Lost in Taking Last Step in Fight for the Condemned Man's Life.

The first active steps toward the appeal to the prison commission and governor to spare the life of Leo Frank were taken last night in a conference held between the confirmed man's lawyers in the office of Leonard Haas in the Fourth National Bank building.

Luther Rosser and Reuben Arnold, chief counselors for Frank in his trial before Judge L. S. Roan, were present at the consultation. Others in the conference were Harry A. Alexander, Leonard Haas and Herbert Haas. The appeal to the commission will be drawn up at once and will be tendered to the prison organization as early as possible.

Peeples May Quit Case.

It has not definitely been decided whether or not the law firm of Tye, Peeples & Jordan, which introduced the constitutional allegation into the Frank case, carrying it to the supreme court, will take an active part in the appeal. They were concerned only with the federal phase of the case.

The connection of the Tye, Peeples & Jordan firm virtually ended when Henry Peeples concluded his argument for Frank's freedom on a habeas corpus writ before Judge W. T. Newman several months ago. An additional legal expert has been in the case since that time, Louis Marshall, a federal law expert of New York, who gave assistance to Frank's counsel when the case was carried into the Washington court.

Date for Appeal Not Fixed.

The time for filing the prison commission plea has not been definitely fixed. Harry A. Alexander, who will direct its course, said Tuesday that he did not know whether it would be sent to the prison commission within the next forty-eight hours or within a week or so. It will be filed as soon as possible, however.

It has been definitely decided by counsel that all future effort will be concentrated upon the plea before the governor and prison board, and that no move will be made to secure a rehearing before the Washington court.

GERMANY IS SILENT ABOUT VON BERNSTORFF

Washington, April 20.—Secretary Bryan said today that the United States never had been officially informed whether the memorandum submitted recently to the state department by Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador, on the question of exports of arms and foodstuffs met with the authority of the german government. He added that the United States had not inquired on that point and was not prepared to discuss whether any reply would be made.

GILLY THE GOPHER BEFORE VICTROLA PINING FOR OPERA

"Canned opera is better than none at all," says Gilly the Gopher, "and when a fellow develops such an appetite for the real thing that he can't wait another minute this sort of a diet helps some."

Since Mr. Gilly arrived in the city for opera week he has been reading and talking and thinking about opera so much that he just couldn't stand it any longer. So last night when the fair ladies would move back the furniture and take up the rug to trip the light fantastic, with Mr. Gilly, he would have nary a bit of it.

"Ballin the Jack" and "The Memphis Blues" were relegated to outer darkness, and the dust was brushed off the quartet from "Rigoletto." The old victrola thrilled once more to the strains of the Barcarolle, and Mr. Martinelli, the new italian tenor, who takes Caruso's place in Atlanta this year, had a tryout.

Pretty Young Woman Worked Smooth Game By Hard Luck Story

Police Chief Beavers has issued instructions to his patrolmen to be on the lookout for a pretty young woman who has been playing a cunning game in Atlanta to get citizens to give her large sums of money.

The young woman, according to the police records, will walk into the office of a prominent business man and proceed to tell him of her imaginary troubles, saying that her landlord is preparing to throw her out of her house that very day unless she can pay her month's rent.

Pleading for help and with tears in her eyes she usually brings forth a $10 or $20 bill from Mr. Business Man and the young woman walks out of his office wiping the tears from her eyes and thanking her benefactor.

One shrewd Atlanta business man, who had handed over $10 in such a manner, became suspicious of the young woman and followed her from his office. She led him into a Whitehall street department store, where she proceeded to purchase a handsome silk shirtwaist.

This business man accosted her, asking for the return of the $10 bill. The young woman hastily gave it back to him and hurriedly left the store. Chief Beavers warns all against this woman.

NELSON LEFT FORTUNE FOR PUBLIC BENEFIT

After Death of Widow and Daughter the Estate Is to Be Used for Uplift Purposes.

Kansas City, April 20.—The will of the late William R. Nelson, owner of The Kansas City Star, probated today, makes the widow and Mrs. Laura Nelson Kirkwood, their daughter, trustees for life for the greater part of his property.

The instrument provides that they shall have the income, but the principal is to be kept intact for the creation after their death, of a fund, the proceeds of which, after providing for any children that may be born to Mrs. Kirkwood, are to be used for the public benefit.

A farm of 1,750 acres in Jackson county, Mo., is set aside to be a model institution for thrifty years to instruct neighbors in stock raising and farming.

On the death of both Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Kirkwood the management of the property is to be placed in the hands of a board of trustees appointed by presidents of the Universities of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma.

The trustees are required to set aside for each of the children of Mrs. Kirkwood, if any, property "of the reasonable value of $1,000,000." The residue is to be managed for public purposes under the name of "The William Rockhill Nelson Trust."

It is provided that the net income "shall be used and expended for the purchase of works and reproductions of works of the finest grade of paintings, engravings, sculpture, tapestries and rare books, the purpose being to procure in this manner works which will contribute to the employment of the public generally, but are not usually provided for by public funds."

It directs the trustees to select works or reproductions of the work of artists who have been dead at least thirty years. All this property is to remain in Kansas City.

Sale of The Kansas City Star is directed "if at the time when the property shall come into the hands of the university trustees, the estate owns and is publishing a newspaper or newspapers. The trustees must sell the newspaper as soon as this can be done without sacrifice, not later than two years from the death of Mr. Nelson's wife and daughter. It is directed that the money thus derived shall be invested.

FEARING HYDROPHOBIA, HE HANGED HIMSELF

Trenton, N. J., April 20.—Fearing death from hydrophobia, John Jucks, a gardener of this city, committed suicide yesterday by hanging. Several years ago Jucks saved several school children from the attacks of a mad dog, and in so doing was badly bitten himself. He was treated at the time, but every spring, on the anniversary of the affair, he has acted queerly, and yesterday, thinking he was going mad from the effects of the dog's bite, he ended his life.

VIGOROUS CONTEST FOR CONTROL OF D. A. R.

Washington, April 20.—Lines were drawn tonight for a vigorous contest for control of the National Organization of the Daughters of American Revolution. "Pour L'Opera"

Here Is an Extract From the Paris Fashion Letter Received by Our New York Office Last Week---It Might Well Be Used as a Resume of What We Have Gathered for Opera Week

"AFTERNOON AND EVENING GOWNS.—Simplicity is the note for these. Logically the new 'line' had to cause the revival of another style which the dressmakers anyhow were trying to bring back since a couple of seasons, which now seems to be introduced again for good, namely, the 1830 style. You can imagine what wide field this artistic fashion has opened to the taste and imagination of our French creators of fashions and to what lovely combinations of colors and soft draperies it leads. Almost all 'Mannequins,' when wearing these gowns, seemed the originals of our 1830 master paintings.

"Tight-fitting waists down to the waist line, and wide skirts, very short—this would be a concise description to give about this style. As to going into details, and whilst we should like to do so, so as to describe every dress to you, we have to refrain from it, as we still want to catch today's mail, and besides would be afraid to bore you with too many details.

"MATERIALS—laces, laces, and still laces. We cannot emphasize enough how much they are used. In flouncings as well as in narrow widths; in white, ecru, black and white, ecru and white, in silver and gold, plain and embroidered, flat or draped, for waists and for skirts, veiled or veiling, used alone or in combinations with other tissues. Lace is the material. Then come soft satin, chiffon, faille (plain or brocaded) and taffetas as the materials mostly used.

"As deserving special mention, we did not want to mix into the above material descriptions the nets which we never saw as much used as this season. Whether plain or with metal embroideries, whether spangled or with spangle and rhinestone motives, net is another fundamental feature of all the nice gowns."

The Ready-to-Wear Section assumes the role of a fashion guide and interpreter. The letter from which the above extract is taken comes with the stamp of Paris on it. It is authoritative; it is accurate. We have printed it because it tells in a general way what you will see here today. But for the particulars, the dresses themselves—we must admit that the real charm, the real glory of this collection of remains for the eyes of women—it is not to be told of.

Our Ready-to-Wear buyer spent the last two weeks in New York. He gathered bountifully, beautifully for Atlanta's opera week. So much so that now we can announce

He was there selecting styles and not picking up things the makers wanted to be rid of. The results are apparent—here are suits that women who follow the fashions want—the tailored styles, with little or no trimming, but so graceful and elegant in line and workmanship—in serges, in poplins, in men's wear materials. Values at $25.00 to $35.00!

EMORY UNIVERSITY GIVEN BIG BOOST

Methodist Stewards Join Founders' Club and Elect Officers for 1915—Bishop Candler Optimistic.

It was announced at the annual meeting of the Atlanta Methodist stewards' association last evening that an Emory University Founders' club had been organized with its members for the purpose of assisting the chamber of commerce in raising the $500,000 pledged for the institution.

The 300 stewards present at the Wesley Memorial church were asked to join the club and to get as many others to join as possible. The club will meet within the next two weeks for permanent organization and monthly thereafter it will meet at a luncheon to render reports.

When this announcement was made Bishop Warren A. Candler said:

"Don't let half a million dollars look too large. Already five men have subscribed $50,000 of that amount."

All the Stewards Join.

All the stewards present joined the club.

An address was made by Bishop Candler, who had left a sick bed rather than miss an opportunity to speak a word for Emory university.

Dr. Plato Durham, the dean of the Candler Theological seminary, made a talk.

The following officers for the association were elected for the ensuing year.

James L. Mayson, president; Wheeler Talmadge, vice president; W. P. Bloodworth, secretary. Mr. Bloodworth was the only officer re-elected.

The meeting was presided over by President Robert Lee Avery.

Before the meeting was called to order a repast was served by a committee of ladies, for which they were given a vote of thanks.

"In speaking for Emory university, Bishop Candler said:

Bishop Candler on the University.

"A great university should be established in the south, for it is a section with a history that entitles it to world-wide recognition. The south is a most fertile soil for an institution of learning, and if the south and the Methodism has flourished that our church should have a great university in Georgia is the soldiest block of Methodism in the whole country.

"The south has wealth and hasn't now a great university. Such an institution must be liberally endowed. The university in New York has a greater endowment than all the university and combined. The only hope for such an institution to which the south is entitled must come from the Methodist church.

"I hope we establish such a university as we hope and believe Emory will be, we will continue to lose our greatest and best men. When we lose our best men of learning we will get a lot of men who are not worth ten cents a million.

"The war in Europe has shifted the center of education to this country. You can talk of getting the trade of the Latin-American countries, but it is only way to secure the trade and business of the countries of South America is to educate them here in the south.

"The largest and richest universities in the east are in the hands of rationalists who know not the Christ. When we train our men here we lose our best foreign countries we must make them first of all Christians.

The Start That Has Been Made.

"We have been given as a start for Emory $1,000,000, to which has been added a pledge of $500,000 by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and $50,000 by Asa G. Candler for the Wesley Memorial hospital. We must have $5,000,000 and in ten years we can get $10,000,000.

"I have been asked to suggest how we are making. I answer that already we have had an architect to lay out the grounds and very soon we will have the buildings under way. I don't want the money if we don't want to pay too much attention to fine structures, but what we want is to get great men to teach our boys.

"In such times, we want religion taught that is shorn of all ritualism and rationalism. Keeping ever in sight the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

"I have been told that accepting the chancellorship of the university will cause my death, but I would rather lay down my life in the cause than to see the university fail.

Dr. Durham followed the bishop by saying a few words of encouragement, saying that he would try to be faithful in the trust imposed upon him when he was appointed dean of the Candler Theological seminary.

The next meeting of the association in June will be held at the Druid Hills Methodist church.

ROOSEVELT VOWS BARNES BEGGED FOR PROTECTION

just who the witness was, and withdrew the question.

Colonel Describes First Battle.

The witness then described his first engagement with the Spanish and again Mr. Ivins objected. The court did not rule and Colonel Roosevelt continued:

"We then moved forward toward Santiago."

"I object to that," said Mr. Ivins, "what difference does it make where he moved to? I want to shorten this trial as much as possible."

Justice Andrews said to the witness had better confine himself to the issue, but Mr. Bowers continued to question the colonel about Spanish war matters.

Later the colonel sketched his career as governor of New York, and vice president and president, and told of his trip to Africa and South America. Since then, he said, he had been writing, and at times "dabbling in politics."

"I have been," he went on, "a citizen of New York all my life. I have always lived in New York city or Oyster Bay, where I first voted.

"I do not remember just when I first met Mr. Platt, but I think it was during my campaign for governor. I was introduced to him by the chairman of some committee in New York.

Met Barnes Many Times.

"Later in Albany I saw him many times. In 1899 I had a number of conferences with him. I had more with him than with any other of the leaders except Mr. Platt and Mr. Odell.

"We had many political discussions. For the most part they were in regard to the relations between myself and the leaders of the republican organization, particularly Senator Platt. There were certain issues between us that I was known as the head of the organization, which controlled the majority of the republican members of the legislature, but sometimes co-operated with the democrats. We were at odds principally over legislative matters."

Did you discuss Platt with Mr. Barnes?" asked Mr. Bowers.

Mr. Ivins objected and was overruled.

The witness replied in the affirmative.

The witness added that he also discussed executive action with Barnes.

"Did you talk to Barnes about canal matters at any time?"

Mr. Ivins objected to the question on the ground that it was incompetent and irrelevant. He was upheld.

"Did you discuss the proposed franchise tax?" asked Mr. Bowers.

Mr. Ivins also objected. Justice Andrews said the defense had a right to prove if possible that there existed between the business and political sort of alliance, or that there was one between Mr. Barnes and Mr. Murphy.

"If these things can be proved," said the court, overruling the objection, "they may establish justification of this alleged libel."

Only Ally Witness for Barnes.

After stating the case to the jury, Mr. Barnes' counsel called only one witness on the stand. He was John McGrath, Colonel Roosevelt's private secretary. He testified that he gave out the statement complained of to newspapers at Oyster Bay.

A partial list of sixty-eight newspapers in which the statement appeared then was read, and counsel for the defendant conceded that the statement had appeared in them. They also conceded that the plaintiff's detailed statement of the circulation of each of the newspapers mentioned was correct.

William M. Ivins, chief of Mr. Barnes' legal staff, outlined in his opening argument the complete case for the plaintiff. The first witness, it was said, would be newspaper reporters to whom Colonel Roosevelt gave the statement on which the suit is based, and to whom he is said to have made certain verbal statements. Nearly a hundred photographs of newspapers containing this article and others, which it is claimed Colonel Roosevelt issued, will be introduced in evidence, it was said. Mr. Ivins declared he expected to show that Colonel Roosevelt made no secret, and exhibited malice toward Mr. Barnes in written and verbal statements.

As was the case yesterday, a large crowd gathered in the courthouse early in hope of being permitted to enter the room. Members of the jury, which was completed yesterday, were permitted to spend the night at their homes.

Crowd Cheered Roosevelt.

Colonel Roosevelt arrived at the courthouse some time before his opening statement was made him and he waved a reply with his hat.

Mr. Ivins began his address by explaining to the jury the laws governing libel.

"You must consider the occasion out of which the alleged libelous matter arose," he continued. The occasion was antecedent to the primary elections in this state last fall. Who were the principals? The defendant while a member of the assembly in the early eighties established a reputation as an author. He at that time had begun to make himself a factor in public affairs. He had more influence than any single newspaper."

Mr. Ivins then outlined Colonel Roosevelt's political career and added:

"During all this time he continued to be fond with his pen and gradually became the greatest factor in American politics.

"When did the interests of the principals in this action begin to diverge?

"I'll tell you. It was during the gubernatorial campaign of 1910. It is enough to say that a controversy arose over who would control the convention. The result was that Colonel Roosevelt was the victor, and he obtained control of the republican party at that time.

When Roosevelt Bolted.

"In 1912 the defendant left the party and to show you how many people had confidence in Colonel Roosevelt, more than 4,000,000 voterse left the party with him.

Styling Colonel Roosevelt "one of the country's greatest historians and authors," Mr. Ivins continued:

"He used a combination of his magnificent command of the English language and his experience in politics to make this attack. I shall show you that in his control of publication, at least 4,000,000 persons and probably more had access to the newspapers of this country in which the statement was printed. Because he was the most powerful political and intellectual factor in the United States he was able to secure wider publication of his remarks than any other citizen could.

"Yesterday in the motion to dismiss counsel for Colonel Roosevelt said nothing personal was meant. I want you gentlemen to pay particular attention to the evidence offered by the defendant and determine for yourselves whether anything personal was meant."

Mr. Ivins concluded as follows:

"We come into court under the great principle of liberty, the quality upon which this action rests. We come in not only for ourselves, but for the benefit of all mankind."

The Case for Roosevelt.

William H. Van Benschoten, of Colonel Roosevelt's counsel, opened the defendant's case.

Mr. Ivins referred to the fact that yesterday was the anniversary of the "shot that was heard around the world," and that shot was fired in the cause of liberty," he said, "it was fired as a protest against corrupt government in England.

"Colonel Roosevelt having been a citizen of this state nearly all his life, certainly had a right to stand up and demand good, honest government."

The lawyer read a series of sentences dealing with corruption in the government of New York, which he said he copied from Barnes' own newspaper, The Albany Journal. He also read editorials from the same paper, in which Colonel Roosevelt was lauded for his efforts to secure clean politics and clean government.

Thomas C. Platt was mentioned by Mr. Van Benschoten in describing the career of Colonel Roosevelt at Albany. It was there, counsel said, that the break in 1899, when Mr. Barnes first came to know each other well. Mr. Platt, declared by the speaker as the "easy boss," then was a political partner of Mr. Barnes.

Mr. Van Benschoten discussed the opposition of Mr. Barnes to Governor Hughes and the activities of Mr. Barnes while Colonel Roosevelt was governor.

"A grave and great responsibility is resting upon the jury in this case," he declared. "The eyes of the state and nation are upon you to see how citizens of old Onondaga look upon an effort to establish clean and efficient government. They look upon the performance of a duty by a citizen in trying to maintain to the people a government by and for the people. A money verdict on one side or the other is inconsequential as compared with the vital proposition which comes home to every man, woman and child in this state as to whether good government shall exist."

Barnes and Franchise Tax.

The witness then replied he did have conversations with Mr. Barnes about the franchise tax act.

"Was any one else present at any of these conversations between you and Mr. Barnes?"

"I do not remember that any other person was present."

Mr. Barnes, the colonel added, endorsed the bill. The franchise tax bill, he said, also will be introduced in evidence, it was said. Mr. Ivins declared he expected to show that Colonel Roosevelt made no secret, and exhibited malice toward Mr. Barnes in written and verbal statements.

As was the case yesterday, a large crowd gathered in the courthouse early in hope of being permitted to enter the room. Members of the jury, which was completed yesterday, were permitted to spend the night at their homes.

Letter From Barnes.

The witness read a letter he received from Barnes when Hughes was governor, which said:

"In view of newspaper articles regarding certain legislation at Albany, I think it is possible you may have a wrong impression regarding the action taken by me. The rumors which were circulated came out of the fertile minds of newspaper men. I think it hardly necessary for me to write you this, but I thought, as I said above, a wrong impression may have been conveyed to your mind. I have done what I believe is right in the matter.

"I believe it will work out all right, and while I may be injured so far as our best people are concerned, it makes little difference what injures me and what does not, so long as I am able to keep my head above water."

A copy of a letter in reply was read by the witness.

"You need not be in the least afraid of my failing to understand your position," it said. "I am confident that whatever course you may follow is one that you believe to be the wise and proper course to take."

When Colonel Roosevelt was excused for the day, Charles N. Winchester, vice president and general manager of the J. B. Lyon company, of Albany, a printing concern, was called to show how much the concern received for printing and other things the defense desires to know about printing contracts. After Mr. Winchester had agreed to permit accountants to go over accounts dealing with state contracts a recess was taken until tomorrow.

POSTPONES APPEAL OF NEGRO SHRINERS

The case of Charles Faison et al. v. Forrest Adair et al., which grew out of an injunction brought by Mr. Adair and other nobles of Yaarab temple, Order of the Mystic Shrine, against Faison and other negroes alleged to have organized an order in imitation of the Mystic Shrine, was postponed when it came Monday upon appeal before the state supreme court.

The postponement was due to the fact that two or three of the supreme court justices will find themselves disqualified to hear the case because of their membership in the Mystic Shrine or close relationship to Shriners. Governor Slaton will be asked to appoint superior court judges to sit in the place of the judges who will disqualify themselves.

The injunction was asked in Fulton superior court, but the judges of this court were disqualified and the hearing was held before Judge H. L. Patterson, of the Blue Ridge circuit, who granted the injunction.

ROBERTSON INDORSED BY ATLANTA VETERANS

Camp A. of Wheeler's Confederate Cavalry Corps of Atlanta, has indorsed General Felix H. Robertson, of Crawford, Texas, as candidate for the honor of commander-in-chief of the United Confederate veterans, election for which will take place at the reunion in Richmond, Va., next June. The camp also pledges its loyal and aggressive support.

The resolutions recently adopted to record this stand of Camp A pays General Robertson the following tribute:

"General Robertson was our comrade and immediate commander in the trying times of the sixties. Brave, dashing, able, he wielded his sword in behalf of our rights with signal and distinguished ability. Alert, fearless, aggressive, he won for himself a name and fame unsurpassed by that of any other general of the confederacy. We know whereof we speak."

Pity the Poor Taxi! Jitney Growing Fat At Nickel Per Ride

Taxi Head Tells Court His Cars Stay at Stand While Jitney Buses Get Business. Hearing Today.

Listen to the tale of woe of the pitiable taxi cab forced to defend itself against the busy little jitney bus.

A. L. Belle Isle, taxi proprietor, was put on the stand before Judge W. D. Ellis Tuesday afternoon to establish the difference between a taxi cab and jitney bus.

Mr. Belle Isle narrated thusly the taxi's tale of tribulations:

Taxi v. Jitney.

"A taxi cab is different from a jitney in that its rates are higher. It differs because it works on an average of two hours a day while the energetic jitney is on the go continuously. The taxi cab spends most of its time idle on the stand awaiting patronage. The jitney goes a-roundhunting patronage at a nickel a throw."

Belle Isle was put on the stand by W. B. Ellis, Jr., and James B. Mayson, attorneys for the city of Atlanta, who are fighting the appeal of the jitney operators from the decision of the city in enforcing its rigorous enactment regulating the operation of jitney buses.

It was contended by the plaintiffs that a jitney bus should be recognized under the same restrictions as the taxi cab; that a jitney was no more than a modified form of taxi cab. It was charged that the jitney bus was being discriminated against by council because of the fact that the jitney bus industry is carried on in competition to the Georgia Railway and Power company.

The petition for permanent injunction was filed by more than a half-hundred jitney bus operators.

Attorney Thomas Felder, chief counsel for the plaintiffs, was in the midst of his argument when court adjourned Tuesday afternoon until 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Affidavits were presented in support of the plaintiffs' charges that the ordinance was discriminatory, unjustifiable, unconstitutional. A typical attestation was that of W. H. Hardin, a bus operator, who stated that he operates a car from 11 Walton street to Inman Yards for 5 cents a ride, that his auto cost $300; that he averages $7.1 a day receipts, and that his expenses come near his average revenue.

With Attorney Felder, Attorneys Walter Brown, Thomas Goodwin and J. V. Poole form the counsel for the jitney bus men.

Grape-Nuts

There's a Reason—in fact, a number of reasons.

Grape-Nuts is a concentrated food, hence a small portion goes a long way.

It is made of wheat and barley, and contains all the nutriment of these grains, including those invaluable mineral salts so often lacking in ordinary food, but which are indispensable for normal growth and maintenance of body and brain. One great aim in originating Grape-Nuts was to supply this lack of mineral elements, and it fulfills its purpose admirably.

Grape-Nuts is a delicious food, and digests quickly, generally in about one hour. Compare this with the 2½ to 3 hours required by bread.

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat less meat if you feel Backachy or have Bladder trouble—Salts fine for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

FRIENDS AT FUNERAL PAY LAST RESPECTS TO SAMUEL W. DIBBLE

The funeral of Samuel Wagner Dibble, editorial writer of The Constitution, who died at an early hour Monday morning, was held at the residence of his father, W. J. Dibble, 153 Summit avenue, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, conducted the services. Interment followed in West View.

The pallbearers were Frank L. Stanton, Francis W. Clarke, Fred Lewis, A. H. Ulm and Dr. W. C. Bryant.

Mr. Dibble's intimate friends and a large number of his acquaintances attended the funeral. The many floral designs, which were the offerings of business associates and friends, were unusually beautiful.

Mrs. McCarthy Shows Improvement and Is Now Out of Danger

Bulletins issued at Grady hospital last night indicated that Mrs. Williams McCarthy, of 299 North Boulevard, who accidentally shot herself Monday night through her left side, was out of danger. She was reported as rapidly improving.

Mrs. McCarthy, who is one of Atlanta's most prominent women, has had numerous inquiries at Grady from friends as to her condition. She is one of the best-known women in the state, and her hundreds of friends will be glad to know that the wound is not a fatal one.

She accidentally shot herself when examining an automatic derringer which she had borrowed from a friend to protect herself at night from burglars, having heard someone walking in her house a few nights before.

Her husband is one of Atlanta's best-known insurance men.

SERIES OF BURGLARIES KEEP POLICE ON JUMP

E. P. McBurney, Whose Home Has Been Frequently Entered, Asks Protection.

There was a large string of burglaries reported to the police Tuesday morning that kept them unusually busy throughout the day.

E. P. McBurney, whose home at 1058 Peachtree road has been the scene of many recent attempted burglaries, appealed to the police for better protection of his home.

Very recently a burglar was discovered in Mr. McBurney's residence by his wife, who called for the police. On their arrival a cordon was thrown about the McBurney home and a police sergeant entered the house to search for the burglar. This sergeant routed the burglar, who sought escape by fleeing upstairs—the sergeant in hot pursuit.

At the critical moment the sergeant's flashlight went out, and the burglar quietly slipped downstairs by another stairway and quietly out of the handsome residence unnoticed.

Since that attempt to burglarize his home, there have been several others, and Mr. McBurney is now seeking better police protection.

L. J. Perkle, of 286 Washington street, reported that a pickpocket had rifled his pockets at Five Points, getting his pocketbook, which contined $10.

The plant of the J. K. Orr Shoe factory was burglarized Monday night and a large quantity of raw leather stolen. The police later arrested a negro woman in connection with the robbery and recovered a part of the stolen leather.

A burglar-tramp boarded a Seaboard engine as it came into Kirkwood Tuesday morning and rifled the private locker of Engineer J. B. Garrison, stealing his diamond stick pin and clothing.

C. M. Oliver, of 15 Windsor street, reported that burglars had robbed him on a pearl handle pistol.

A burglar attempted to break into a residence at 120 East Georgia avenue, according to police records. E. D. Saye, of 181 East Georgia avenue, told the police he saw a prowler in the rear of the house and frightened him away as he tried to break in a back window.

Burglars stole a box of shoes from Charles Nobles, of 286 West Mitchell street.

T. U. COX GIVES SELF UP.

Under an Indictment Charging Murder of Robert Booth.

Pelham, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—T. U. Cox, who shot and killed Robert Booth in the western part of the county several weeks ago, came in and surrendered to Sheriff Crow at Camilla today. Cox was dismissed at a committment hearing held a few days after the killing, but the grand jury, which is now in session, last week returned an indictment against him, charging him with murder.

Mitchell superior court is in session and it is understood that he will be tried at this term.

Thirty-Two Courts Furnished by the City To Tennis Players

There are thirty-two tennis courts in the city parks, located as follows: Piedmont park, 18; Grant park, 6; Mims park, 2; Oakland City park, 3, and one each in the following parks: Pierce, De Leon, Howell and Springdale. Three more courts are in course of construction in Adair park.

J. O. Cochran, general manager of parks, says that no more popular amusement was ever inaugurated for the people than lawn tennis. Under the rules for the courts all persons playing must give up the court on the hour. That is, a person who starts on the hour can play exactly an hour, but a person who takes a court five minutes before the hour must release the court at the expiration of the five minutes. Children are not allowed on the courts after 3 p. m., unless playing with adults, and are not allowed at all on Saturday afternoons.

The courts are all in first-class condition.

NEGRO EDUCATORS SPEAK AT NORMAL

Rev. J. A. Hadley, presiding elder of the Atlanta district, A. M. E. church, speaking to the students of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute on "Useful Education," said: "You will see here and appreciate what it means to do well that thing in life you are best fitted to do. You ought to appreciate more than you do the opportunity of going to school. You ought to know how to earn an honest living and to do so you must learn a trade.

Laura L. Turner, editress of The Woman's Missionary Journal, said: "The one great question with sane and sensible people the country over is: Will the negro boy and girl make good when they come from school? Can and will they do things that they or some one else want done? In other words, can the black boy and girl of our race be depended upon for usefulness. I would like to have you think of these things. Are we willing to do some sort of work? Are we ashamed to work with our hands? Are we lazy and indifferent, are questions we may well ask ourselves."

Bishop Henry M. Turner said he believed in practical education for all students. He spoke commendably of white friends who have aided Principal Stinson to carry on the work. Several visitors were present.

B. W. HUNT RECOVERING.

Banker-Farmer "Dropped in Harness' Work for His State.

Friends of B. W. Hunt, of Eatonton, Ga., ex-president of the Georgia Bankers' association and one of the leaders in the tick eradication campaign in Georgia, will be glad to learn that he is recuperating from his recent very serious illness.

Mr. Hunt, who has spent the best years of his life in the betterment of rural conditions in Georgia, literally "dropped in harness" working for his state.

His illness was due to exposure in very inclement weather during a 100-mile automobile trip to Sandersville to speak at a tick eradication meeting, April 2. At Sandersville he was very ill, but spoke in spite of his illness. Upon his return to Eatonton he spoke before a meeting of the Teachers' institute and the Boys' Corn club, though still ill. Shortly afterwards he collapsed in his office.

A much inflamed arm developed into blood poison, and his condition became very grave. His condition is now such as to warrant assurance of his recovery.

Dog Show Will Open Friday at Peachtree Street Skating Rink

The spring dog show of the Atlanta Kennel club will open next Friday morning at the skating rink, which was formerly the Chapman-Alexander tabernacle, on Peachtree street. The show will last through Saturday.

There are now about 100 entries for the show and Atlanta's most aristocratic canines will be out in all their glory. The entries are still open, and those having dogs they desire to enter, may do so by applying to H. S. Courtney, 11 West Harris street. The fee is 25 cents for each class in which the dog is entered. Ribbons will be awarded in all classes.

The dogs will be judged by M. A. Knight and Alf Berthing, of Atlanta, and S. H. Steffing, of Covington, Ky.

Owners of dogs entered are requested to have their dogs at the skating rink Friday morning at 9 o'clock for examination. This examination will be made by Dr. J. C. Wright, in order that no dog with contagious disease may happen to get in.

G. H. Bray, R. R. Arnold and W. H. Copeland, owners of the skating rink, and who donated the use of it for the dog show, announce that skating will continue during the show.

Admission of 25 cents will be charged allowing both admission to the show and the privileges of the rink. After the show the skating rink will resume its price of 10 cents.

Atlanta Is Working On Conventions That Would Bring 50,000

Visitors numbering 50,000 will come to Atlanta next year, if only half of the conventions soon to be negotiated with are landed by the Atlanta convention bureau, according to Secretary Fred Houser. WATER AND SEWERAGE COMMISSION URGED

Creation of Central Body to Guard Purity of Streams Recommended.

Athens, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—What is believed to be one of the most important conferences, in its far-reaching effects into the future, ever held in the state adjourned late Tuesday at the University of Georgia when the water supply and sewerage conference held by the school of engineering and engineering society at the institution completed its work.

This was the first conference of the sort ever held in the state, and more municipalities were represented than had been expected. Fully fifty of the cities and the towns of Georgia sent their mayors, health officers, city engineers and members of council. Statesboro had the largest delegation, Macon, Atlanta, Augusta and several south Georgia towns were represented by leading engineers and officials.

Leo Hudson, of Pittsburg, consulting hydraulic and sanitary engineer of that city, made the keynote address—exhaustive and comprehensive papers—one on "Water Supply and Purification" and the other on "Sewage Disposal and Examples From Practice." Both papers will be put into permanent form and mailed to the conferees. Leonard Metcalf, consulting hydraulic and sanitary engineer of Boston, Mass., Friday was another speaker of note. P. H. Norcross, of Atlanta, Ray C. Werner, of the state board of health, W. C. Hammon, of Atlanta; Captain R. M. Clayton, of Atlanta; Captain J. J. Gaillard, of Macon; Dr. White, Dr. Black, Captain Barnett, C. J. Hood and many others had an active part in the discussion of these matters of vital importance in the health of the urban population of the state.

Sentiment was crystallized around the keynote of the conference. A movement to establish, either through the present board of health of the state or some other commission, a central state authority charged with the personal duty of maintaining a standard of purity of water supply for the cities and towns of the state and with full control over the systems of towns and cities as may be found affected by the sewage disposal of other towns further upstream or where the sewage disposal affects the safety of the systems further downstream.

The equitable distribution of rates for water—between consumer and fire protection—also was a practical theme for earnest discussion, and permanent municipal ownership of waterworks was emphasized.

New methods of filtration and water purification as are shown and discussed, the latest methods of sewage handling was exhaustively discussed.

A committee was named to urge upon the coming legislature, in view of the rapidly increasing number of towns in the state which are installing water and sewerage systems, the establishing of a central board of control.

After reaching manhood Mr. Richardson represented that county in the state senate, several terms in the general assembly and served in the house of reps. and as clerk of the superior court at different times.

He is survived by his wife and the following children: Mrs. M. L. Green, Mrs. T. Tucker, G. B. Richardson, W. L. Richardson, A. S. Richardson, J. H. Richardson, Mrs. E. E. Richardson, of this city, and W. B. Richardson, of Lavonia. Twenty living grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren.

City Marshal Will Make Negro Loafers Pay a Street Tax

The negroes on Decatur and Peters streets who think they have a vested right to the profession of loafing are greatly excited over the activity in the city marshal's office to make them pay street tax.

A crusade is on and the first case was tried in the police court Tuesday afternoon, when Will Butler was arraigned. He was fined $1.75, and made to pay his street tax with costs that amounted to $5. He paid the fine and was held over until his friends could raise the other $5.

There are many negroes loafing who could get work if they tried and the city marshal thinks they should at least pay a tax for occupying the streets and he is, therefore, enforcing the street tax ordinance.

That the loafers are congested was shown by the scarcity of them on the streets Tuesday afternoon.

GETTING AT IT OFFICIALLY.

With reports coming from council's committee appointed to make personal investigation of conditions in Atlanta's public schools we are beginning to get at the deplorable facts officially; and it is noted that they bear out in remarkable degree the results of the investigations made by the Atlanta School Improvement association and the Federation of Trades.

Council's committee found, as already reported by these civic organizations, that Atlanta needs new high school and grammar school buildings, and needs them badly. It is not a question of making repairs; they are too far gone in some instances to admit of it.

The committee is making no new discovery, but it is rendering important service in putting official stamp upon report of conditions known to exist. Council will not have to take the word of any citizen or civic organization; it will know for itself.

An interesting recommendation in connection with this official investigation, as far as it has gone, comes from Councilman Claude L. Ashley, one of the investigating committee, who suggests the consolidation of the four high schools into one efficient central plant, to replace the scattered fragments of the institution or institutions, now located in various sections of the city. So impressed is Councilman Ashley with the importance of the development of this plan that he states regarding it:

> I would be willing to call a halt on our street paving for one entire year and give the money saved to building such a school and improving others. It would mean an advertisement for Atlanta that would be nation-wide and would give our children opportunities they can never get in the institutions now in existence.

It is indicated that this recommendation may be made a prominent part of the committee's report. It is the plan adopted by Savannah, which has, perhaps, the best high school plant in Georgia or the southeast; and by several other cities whose school systems stand at the forefront.

Whatever plan is adopted for school improvement and the increasing of educational efficiency—and it ought to be the very best the council can devise—it is already apparent from the partial investigation of council's committee that there is a big work to be done, and done at once. New schools must be built and others repaired; sanitary conditions must be bettered in practically all of them, and seats must be provided for every child of school age in Atlanta, with equal hours of instruction for each.

In another year approximately 2,000 more children will be added to the present enrollment, whereas there is not room now for all those seeking to attend.

Council has taken hold of the problem none too quickly. Atlanta is actually on the verge of a deplorable school crisis. To have let it gone longer without remedy would no doubt have meant disaster. It is gratifying to feel that the unanimity with which council has so far acted indicates that the necessary remedy will be speedily applied.

GOOD ROADS REVIVAL.

Incident to the recent Chattanooga meeting to plan the Hoosierland-to-Dixie highway from Chicago to Miami, there has come a remarkable revival in good roads sentiment and construction that carries back to the period of several years ago when the good roads movement was given remarkable impetus by The Constitution's automobile tours and similar enterprises which held attention to the importance of this particular form of progress.

It is not to be understood that there has been cessation of effort. On the other hand, constant progress has been made in Georgia and adjacent states, and road conditions generally are far superior throughout this section to what they were two or three years ago.

But it needed something like the Chattanooga meeting and its important object to center attention in good roads work and to put into it that life and enthusiasm which makes for bigger and better results. That is just what the Dixie highway movement has done. While the value of detached road improvement, affording better highway facilities to every village and every farm house, cannot be questioned, the particular thing the Chattanooga meeting has done is to direct attention to the importance of the trunk line roadway as a factor in community building.

Since that meeting newspaper dispatches are filled with reports of good roads meetings being held in many sections of Georgia, as well as other states covering the route of the proposed highway; and instead of scattered sentiment organized public determination is getting back of the work. Many communities are not waiting for the selection of the Dixie route; they have gone to work to complete their part of the trunk-line road mileage through their counties, regardless of the selection. Undoubtedly they will be in position to make the stronger argument before the Dixie highway directors when the question of route selection comes up.

Thus, while the Chicago-Miami highway was primarily responsible for it, there has been brought about a renewed activity in good roads construction even apart from it, so that its influence will be more far-reaching in results than merely in the construction of that splendid highway alone. Improved roads between distant points, which will not become part of the main highway, are actually under construction today; and of lateral good roads building in connection with the main highway, there is no telling what the extent will be.

While making steady progress, good roads building needed just such a stimulus as this to put organized public enthusiasm into it. The work of the board of directors in choosing the route and securing county pledges, and the construction of the Dixie highway itself, will keep alive that extraordinary interest for many months to come. The completed road, with all it means for progress to the communities upon it, will lend still greater impetus; it will result in the early building of other roads like it until travel upon smooth, hard surface to the remotest corners of the south is made possible.

The good roads revival in Georgia and the southeast is permanent, and there is no question that the Dixie highway movement had much to do with the making of it.

ATLANTA'S TAG DAY.

Atlanta has given "Tag Day," the only real tag day of the year, to one of the noblest and most effective charities instituted in the city—the Sheltering Arms.

This year, more than ever, the Sheltering Arms stands in need of the sympathetic and substantial assistance of the Atlanta public. It is the one dependence of women with children, who must work for bread. Here the children are kept and nursed and doctored and tended, while the mothers are employed in their daily vocations to meet the inevitable demands of existence. Circumstances this year have driven more women than ever before to the necessity of finding employment, and the consequent demand upon the Sheltering Arms has been the greater. Its treasury has been exhausted and it faces in its work a year of heavier expense than it has ever known before.

Thursday, April 22, has been selected as Tag Day this year, and every Atlantan should be ready for it. Generous-hearted Atlanta women who give to the work both time and money will be upon the streets, in the stores, office buildings and hotels, ready to exchange a tag for a contribution large or small, in the hope that Atlanta's response to this need will make Thursday the city's record-breaking Tag Day.

There is no nobler charity than that which finds practical expression in the Sheltering Arms, helping struggling mothers to help themselves. Its appeal should prove irresistible; there should be no Atlantan without his tag on Thursday.

If all the recent ex-presidents of Mexico should colonize in this country and imitate Huerta in explaining their explanations, world-peace would be a wilder dream than ever.

They say our longtime friend, Huckleberry Finn, has celebrated his 90th birthday. Mark Twain predicted long life for him.

With 6,000 of his soldiers out of business, Villa's specialty is now a lone home-run.

So far Huerta hasn't asked for a brass band accompaniment. He talks to beat the best the bands can do.

Secretary Bryan has sprained his ankle. How fortunate that he doesn't talk with it!

Villa has been talking of prohibition for Mexico. Now we know what made Huerta wild.

For all they say to the contrary, Uncle Sam's neutrality is all wool and world-wide.

Still, no one wants Huerta to "salute this great country" with a first page broadside each morning.

The Colonel isn't talking like a peace advocate in that Barnes case.

The Far Journey.

(To S. W. D.)

I.

Joy of the world and its light,
Peace for the sorrowing breast;
Soon comes the stillness of Night
Breathing of Rest.

II.

Over—the toiling and tears
Here, where dark storms are at strife,
Friend of the beautiful years,
Lover of life.

III.

Strange for the vacant, sad place
Once thrilled with life and high thought;
Strange I should seek for thy face,
Finding it not!

IV.

"He is gone but a journey," I say,
And still for his coming I wait,
To hear, with the dying of day,
His step at life's gate.

V.

But he comes not. The hours grow long
And vanish like shadows of signs
Will he come with a glad, morning song—
The old light in his eyes?

VI.

Life would wake at his touch and his tone
And smile at the thought of its fears;
But Memory mourns for her own
And Night knows her tears.

VII.

O heart, with a life-love made warm,
That beat for a world to be blest,
After the stress of life's storm
May I rest in your rest.

Proverbs of the Highway.

If you build your house on the site of Tribulation Town, be thankful to the hurricane that sweeps it away.

Never mind the rough places of the road, for the journey is brief, and Night falls before you have earned its rest.

To hate lived and known the light and loveliness of this world, even for a little space, is joy to be envied of the angels.

The sweetest songs of life come from the hearts of those who are thankful for Life's little joys, and share their blessings with their brethren.

My Garden.

Here is an old-time, best-tribute to a garden, by Thomas Edward Brown:

"A garden is a lovesome thing, God wot!
Rose plot,
Fringed pool,
Fair'd grass for dappled shade and deep
The veriest school
Of peace; and yet the fool
Contends that God is not—
Not God! in gardens! when the eve is cool?
Nay, but I have a sign.
'Tis very sure God walks in mine."

Where the "Pain" Really Was.

The Philadelphia Record says that when the Kronprinz Wilhelm entered Hampton Roads she strictly observed the canons of conduct laid down by the marine reporters for steamships in such circumstances. She limped, as all properly behaved boats are supposed to do in entering port after a dive. By experience at sea, indeed, she did still better. She limped painfully in from the sea . . . and, with what sounded like a sigh of relief, dropped her anchor." The Record adds:

"Painfully is good. To an ordinary person, however, it would seem that the sensations of hard work must be especially acute in those British and French warships which had been hanging about the entrance to the Straits, and which, the Kronprinz Wilhelm skilfully avoided. The anguish must have been intense. Uncle Sam alone is unaffected by all these painful proceedings."

A Loophole for Bailey.

Another conducting word of the fishing season, from George Bailey, in The Houston Post:

"Is it a sin to catch fish just for the fun of it when you don't want to eat them?" asks a little boy of Brenham. It must be, son, but in view of the great temptation and the weakness of the flesh it may be that there is mercy in store for the wretch who does it. At least, on our own account we hope so."

Springtime Philosophy.

These editorial whiffs from The Macon News:

"Strawberry shortcake, collard greens, hock beer—goodness gracious, why, Spring IS here!

"Would anybody like to swap a few blocks of ice for a few chunks of soft coal?

"First settlers nowadays are those who pay their bills on the first of the month.

"Every time a fellow looks at his coal box now and sees a few lumps still on hand, he blames himself for pure extravagance."

The Holland Letter

The opportunity was given, in 1905, to Ralph Peters to demonstrate the accuracy of judgment and the farsighted business statesmanship of A. J. Cassatt, and statements which have just been officially made make it clear that he has successfully accepted this opportunity. Mr. Peters is one of the considerable number of men of southern birth and early training who have achieved greatly in transportation and industrial activities both in the south and in the north. His success in the management of the Long Island railroad system can be traced back to his early successes in Atlanta, Ga., the town of his birth. Subsequently he became associated with the Pennsylvania railroad, particularly in its southwest system, and was for a number of years indentified with the commercial and industrial growth of Cincinnati. Presumably it was Mr. Peters' association with the Pennsylvania which led to the selection of him ten years ago as president and general manager of the Long Island railroad system. Within these ten years his constructive work has been so thorough that the public is at last beginning to understand why President Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania railroad, bought some fifteen years ago, for this company the control of the Long Island system.

There used to be some cynical comments made when this Long Island railroad purchase by President Cassatt was mentioned. Some even went so far as to say that Cassatt permitted his sentiment and his pride of achievement to master his judgment, for it has not done that he would not have ventured to construct tunnels under the Hudson river, under Manhattan island, under the East river with a final terminal on Long Island. Some who deemed themselves excellent financiers could not see where the Pennsylvania looked for a return for the way of traffic gain upon the enormous investment which this extraordinary constructive work entailed. Some criticised President Cassatt because he was willing to permit William G. McAdoo, now secretary of the treasury, to construct his Hudson river tubes. Perilous, thought some. Just how the building of these tubes would probably change the earning capacity of his ferryboats which connected Manhattan with the Pennsylvania terminal at Jersey City so that instead of returning profit they would be compelled to report deficit, did not appear. Mr. Cassatt frankly said to Mr. McAdoo that while the Pennsylvania company would not participate in any way in the financing of the Hudson river tubes, the mere fact of their being would give its moral support to the undertaking, the plan would have been abandoned. Upon Cassatt's pledge Mr. McAdoo went ahead. President Cassatt realized that with the construction of the McAdoo tubes, then so called, the greatest possible business brought to the Pennsylvania within two years greatly increased suburban traffic. That forecast has been vindicated.

What Public Did Not Know.

What the public did not know and what even the Vanderbilts did not suspect when President Cassatt offered to them an equal interest in the Long Island railroad, an offer which was declined—was that the president of the Pennsylvania had pictured forth in his imagination Long Island, with its great value as a commercial and industrial center, the magnitude of the traffic which would originate and be distributed there, and beyond all was the fact that he foresaw what the relation of the Pennsylvania railroad system to the Ohio valley, to the south and to the southwest would become by the construction of a stupendous approach to Manhattan and Long Island. He foresaw that by means of the tunnels—and the work has substantially added New England to the south and southwest and, on the other hand, carry enormous business from these great sections of the country into New England.

All but one important factor in President Cassatt's plan has now been completed. There remains only the final work upon one of the world's great bridges, whose roadway hangs suspended really in the air above the whirlpool estuary which is called Hell Gate, and which when completed will bring the New Haven road system and the Pennsylvania system into actual and complete physical union.

President Peters now reports that this bridge and the connecting railroad which will make use of it are to be finished next year. This is gratifying and in most impressive manner all that President Cassatt saw with the eye of imagination fifteen years ago is now being made visible. It was from the Long Island railroad company that one of the great railway systems of England secured its general manager a year ago, Henry Thornton, who, under President Peters, was the general superintendent of the Long Island system. He is now the general manager of the Great Eastern railway of England, and President Peters is understood to have learned that his former superintendent had recommended that the use of the English government for the skill and speed with which he has facilitated a vast movement of troops to the coast.

Justin Corbin's Prediction.

It was while the late Austin Corbin was intimately associated with the Reading railroad of Pennsylvania that his attention was fixed upon the Long Island railroad on the south of the mainland of New York, which is only 120 miles long and at its broadest not more than 20 miles wide. It was that President Cassatt received some inspiration for his stupendous undertaking through his knowledge of what Austin Corbin contemplated. Mr. Corbin brought together a half dozen dilapidated, sickety, railroads upon Long Island and in doing this was one of the first to demonstrate the economic possibilities which follow railroad unification. He also realized that if the commercial and industrial opportunity which now is upon this little island were to be realized he must construct a tunnel from the Brooklyn shore to Manhattan island and another to Jersey City. Mr. Corbin seems not to have contemplated alliance with the New England railroad system, but it is clear he must have had in mind the establishment of a seaport at Montauk whereby, as he believed, European trips would be shortened some six hours. But Mr. Cassatt realized the possibilities both for the south and southwest, as well as for New England, which lay in the construction of a linking railroad by means of a bridge over Hell Gate and the use of the Pennsylvania tunnel.

When Mr. Cassatt took hold of this property it was, as President Peters recently said, not much more than a summer excursion railroad system. Today it is a standard railroad with gross earnings of $17,000,000 compared with $1,000,000 when Mr. Cassatt bought it. Cassatt predicted an enormous increase in passenger traffic after his plans were put into effect and if he were now living he would rejoice in the justification which the figures give. Cassatt's plans carried 12,000,000 passengers a year when Mr. Cassatt bought it, while in 1914 it carried nearly 42,000,000. The time is at hand when there is to be by visible demonstration complete justification of the marvelous business vision which inspired President Cassatt to buy the Long Island system. The effects will be felt not only in New England, but beneficially in the south and southwest, for upon those sections of the country an enormous commerce with New England is sure to be developed within a few years.

HOLLAND.

The Riches of Poverty.

(From The Richmond Times-Dispatch.)

A man without a penny in his pocket can stand on the top of a hill overlooking eastern bay on his right and the blue ridge, and count the birds that skim athwart the azure; he can fill his lungs with the purest ozone, and drink sparkling water from the spring; if he is high enough he can pluck the hardy flowers that seek the rocks. And as he stands there, full of health and vigor, he can say: "All this is mine—this hill and yonder meadows and forest, the blue sky and the birds, the cooling spring and the flowers—all this is mine to enjoy while I live, if I will, and the wealth of earth could not buy it for any man!"

Correspondence School to Aid In Fight Against Tuberculosis

That Georgia will soon take her place in the forefront of the fight against tuberculosis is the belief of James P. Faulkner, executive head of the W. G. Raoul Foundation, who has just returned from a tour of the state for the purpose of organizing and establishing a district community and rural nursing service in connection with the various anti-tuberculosis offices that are being maintained throughout the state under the direction of the Raoul Foundation and other anti-tuberculosis associations.

Mr. Faulkner realizes that the big fight against the dread disease must be carried on in the home, and he is proceeding along lines that will best educate the people to guard against it. To this end, he is also establishing a correspondence school, which will furnish free literature to all who write for it, giving information regarding the best methods of sanitation, prevention and treatment of tuberculosis. In addition to furnishing this literature, the Foundation will be glad to answer any questions by letter on subjects that may not be explained in the printed matter.

"It is generally recognized," said Mr. Faulkner, "that 98 per cent of those afflicted with tuberculosis can never hope to reach a sanitarium. While the sanitarium is by far the better place for treatment of this disease, and the Foundation is anxious to see as many of these institutions as possible established in the state, we propose to seek to combat the disease where it will have to be conquered, if conquered at all, in the home. Much of the work, therefore, will be educational through the distribution of literature, through lectures and through the co-operation of the press. In this way, and through the Community and Rural Nursing Service that will be instituted, we hope soon to put Georgia in the front rank of the fight."

To do this, Mr. Faulkner said it would require quite a considerable reserve fund. Foundation now has at its command, and the various counties where the service is established are expected to co-operate in financing the movement.

FIVE-DOLLAR MOVIES.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

Seven years ago David W. Griffith was a penniless actor, knocking about New York trying to get some one to listen to his scheme for producing moving pictures on a large scale. Today he is the leading genius in the moving picture world, with an annual salary that runs into six figures. He declares that within the next three or four years moving pictures will be produced for which the price of admission will be $5 and $6, in support of his assertion he points out that a few years ago an ingenious fellow who thought to be as much as the business would stand, and 5 cents was considered the best price that could be got, and a theater where the only attraction was pictures. Then came the $50,000 picture, for which theater managers asked and obtained 50 cents. He is now exhibiting in New York one which cost $200,000, and he is asking $2 for a seat. The public not only is paying the price, but it is buying from speculators for as much as $5. "And when you" an put on a picture that will cost $2,000,000 to produce, the public will be willing to pay $5 a seat for it," he adds.

He predicts that in time the melodrama will entirely disappear from the list of regular stage plays. The people will not be satisfied with views of little corners of the world and of life. They will demand great, sweeping scenes impossible of production on any but the largest picture canvas. Of Mr. Griffith, he used 18,000 people and 1,500 horses and 2,000 words of explanatory matter, including four pages from Woodrow Wilson's history of the United States. The people, he argues, can get history better in this way than through books. They will also get literature and drama without end. Of course, allowance must be made for the enthusiasm of a man who has proved his ability to perform wonders in pictures, but it seems that the possibilities of the moving picture have by no means been exhausted.

THIS CAKE WAS EVERYTHING.

(From The Philadelphia North American.)

A pound cake exposed for sale in front of a store on Christian street, above Eighth, was found by Professor Charles H. La Wall to contain:

Sand and coal dust.
Disintegrated bran fragments.
Human hair.
Wood fragments black and yellow.
Cotton fibers—white, black, blue, yellow, and green.
Linen fibers—white, green and violet.
Straw, partly disintegrated.
Disintegrated vegetable matter, similar to that observed in fertilizer.
Cobwebs.
Pine wood and other wood fragments.
Paper fragments.
Iron rust fragments.

Professor La Wall, who is chemist for the state and food commissioner, read off this list in testifying against the grocer at a hearing before Magistrate Rooney. The storekeeper was held in $100 bail for court.

"Any cake exposed where food is exposed for sale without protection," said Professor La Wall, "and you will find conditions that contain all these. There is no law in Pennsylvania to compel storekeepers to keep foodstuffs protected from impurities carried by the wind. The only way we can prosecute dealers is to follow this filthy practice is to buy their products and subject them to chemical analysis."

LAST SURVIVOR OF MONITOR.

(From The Christian Herald.)

Living, hale and hearty, is the last of the heroic band that fought the Merrimac and defeated her on March 9, 1862. His name is William Durst. When Lieutenant John L. Worden, commanding officer, was burned who caught him and carried him to safety. He says: "It was a battle that was fought from 8 in the morning till 2 in the afternoon of a March day. Then the Merrimac, with her sloping sides, was made to retire. Worden was badly hurt as he stood at the turret looking out of the eyehole, a Merrimac shell exploded near by, one piece of which gave him temporarily blind. His wounds were severe, but not fatal. Some on the Merrimac bled from mouth, nose and ears from the concussions of the Monitor, which steamed proudly away after the encounter. She was practically unhurt."

"The Rebels Yankees chebesbee on a raft," as the Monitor was called, sank in a windstorm when en route to Beaufort, N. C., four officers and many men were drowned. The loss was great, but the Monitor had demonstrated the value of armored vessels for warfare on the seas.

KNOWN BY CHIPPED TOOTH.

(Philadelphia (Pa.) Dispatch to The New York Herald.)

Down at League Island the entire marine corps is shaking with silent laughter at the dilemma of the officers of Company A, second regiment, for the company has as members unusual twins.

They are Leslie and Hallie Woodcock, 20 years old, from South Carolina. At enlistment they were promised they would not be placed in separate companies.

In sending the list of those detailed for various police duties in the morning the officers merely mention the name of Woodcock. They realize that one blonde twin will report for duty. Further investigation is useless.

One or two of the men have discovered a small piece has been chipped from a front tooth of one of the twins.

"That would be a hot one," observed an old sergeant, "Who goes there—Woodcock? Halt and uncover tooth."

GOOD MUNICIPAL HOUSECLEANING.

(From The Baltimore American.)

A town in Indiana has the unusual record of a mayor, a judge and a sheriff sent to jail, with other officials suffering the same fate. This is a city which has the bluegrass municipal affairs which never fails to clean. When jail sentences become a factor in the situation, then the reform is in downright earnest.

WHICH WOULD HE BE?

(From Case-and-Comment.)

A Maine lawyer tells of an inquest held at a certain place in that state, when, after the usual swearing in of the jurors, one of them arose from his seat and, with much dignity, protested against serving as a juror, as he was "managing clerk" for a firm of lawyers, and could not waste his valuable time at an inquest. Whereupon the coroner, turning to the clerk, said: "Mr. Jones, kindly mind my clerk." Then, after consulting a book of reference, he turned upon the juror and fixed him with his glittering eye. "Upon reference to Jervis," said he, "I find that no persons except ministers, subscribing and dissenting are exempt from service as jurors. Under which heading do you claim exemption?"

A PROBLEM IN SAVING.

(Marysville (Pa.) Dispatch to The Philadelphia American.)

One dollar and a penny compound interest for 1,000 years would amount to 104 quintillion, 69 quadrillion, 620 trillion, 317 billion, 985 million, 85 thousand, 592 dollars (104,069,620,317,985,085,592). This is the result obtained by Edwin Soule, a freshman in the Newport High school.

Assistant Principal G. W. Barnitz, of the school, wagered young Soule that he could not solve the problem. Soule worked until midnight one night, consuming two tables and four pencils. He received his dollar.

CHANCE FOR SAFETY FIRST.

FREEDOM.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

Freedom is man's ability to do as he has planned pleases.

It is the choicest gift of civilization and is the most highly valued next to the ability to make some other man do what you blamed please.

From the beginning of history men have fought for freedom at every opportunity. Nothing has made brave men to buckle on their armor and wade through rivers of gore so cheerfully as the belief that somebody was holding out on them the liberty they. America became a free country almost 150 years ago and yet today the fight for freedom goes on more fiercely than ever. Scarcely an election occurs in this country in which some patriot does not arise to plead with the people to strike off their shackles and vote as one man for freedom as represented by the right to drink beer all night or to exercise a holding company with grabbing attachments.

This sad condition does not exist because of any lack of desire to escape this load of the purest freedom ever handed out. It is so difficult to determine who shall partake thereof. It is very easy to secure perfect freedom for one man, but for that man he must be enabled to interfere with the freedom of several thousand others. It is done as he pleases, he is denied interference with the exercise of his freedom. He can do as he pleases. Nothing can prevent him from unfettered action, for example, when driving an automobile down the wrong side of the street at a mile-a-minute gait in full pursuance of his sacred privileges.

Ever since the printing press and gunpowder was invented, but more especially since the unhealthy swing to extreme democracy which began with the French revolution, we have been exercising the game individualistic sport or custom to toss a certain amount of freedom into the common pot and make a law out of it. We are now capering bound by 11,500 laws with a prison clause in each, yet the dear stuff has gone down remarkably ago. We do not have to burn our wealth and watch over it with a hottle ax any more.

"Plead with the people to strike off the shackles and vote as one man for liberty."

There are still people who yearn for perfect freedom and indulge in it now and then to excess. But they do not last long. Sooner or later they are taken up as common nuisances and died away in a stone mansion for fifteen years to life.

We have no perfectly free men by more, but we have two-score people who are not interfered with by other people's freedom to any extent, which is a greater blessing.

RIPPLING RHYMES

By WALT MASON.

GRIT.

When Edison awoke one night, Misfortune loomed up at his bedside. He'd had a stroke, his mighty shops were all ablaze, the product of his toilsome days was going up in smoke. Even his wife, who loved him for many things, he lost a fortune fit for kings, while fire fiends painted red against the gods he might have railed, he might have wrung his hands and wept, but he said a tear he didn't; he gazed upon the sea of flame, and said, "This interrupts the game, but twill not do so long; tomorrow I will build my shops and clear away the smoking wreck, a thousand workmen strong! We'll build up better than before, and if the fire fiend comes once more, we'll smile and say, 'Old scout, you've done your worst, and we're still here!' And then old Edison heaved a single sigh. And we, who run around and cause ourselves to meet some slight hitch, we would bear in mind this tale, we ought to meet with dauntless front misfortune's worst and fiercest stunt, and not put up a wail.

VITAL STATISTICS STRONGLY URGED

Health Officers of State Name Committee to Back Law on Subject Before the Next Legislature.

Macon, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—The Georgia Association of State, County and Municipal Health Officers, at their annual meeting here today, authorized the appointment of a committee to draft a memorial to the next legislature asking that a law be passed requiring the keeping of vital statistics by every city and town in the state. This action followed an address by Dr. H. F. Harris, of Atlanta, secretary of the state board of health.

The committee named for this purpose is composed of Drs. Forth, Monerief and Thorpe.

On suggestion of A. V. Wood, of Brunswick, former president of the association, health officers all over the state were urged to have a card_index system instituted in the public schools to keep a tab on the health of the children. By this means it will be possible to find out how many do not practice methods of hygiene and make it possible to encourage them to do so.

Among the questions which it is proposed the school children of the state shall be asked are: Do you bathe regularly? Do you brush your teeth regularly? Do you sleep with your window open? Do you keep your finger nails clean? Do you keep pencil and fingers away from your mouth?

In Brunswick, where the plan was tested out recently, Mr. Wood reported to the convention that 28 per cent of the children did not wash their teeth regularly, and 24 per cent did not bathe regularly. In a few days the former showed an improvement of 10 per cent and the latter 7 per cent.

The address of Dr. R. H. Collins, of Atlanta, the woman director of the state boards laboratories, on "Immunity From Contagious Diseases," was an interesting one. She stated that physicians in Georgia are inclined to give excessive doses of unusually high concentration.

About forty health officers from different portions of the state attended the meeting today. Dr. J. J. Williams, of Macon, was elected to succeed Mr. Wood, of Brunswick.

STATE S. S. CONVENTION HOLDS FIRST SESSION

Nearly a Thousand Delegates Are Enjoying the Hospitality of Americus.

By Rev. Thomas M. Elliott.

Americus, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—With nearly a thousand delegates in attendance, representing eighty counties of the state, the opening session of the annual convention of the Georgia Sunday School association was held here today. This already large number of Sunday school workers now present will be increased by several hundred more, until at least 1,200 shall be registered.

Americus people have opened their hearts and homes for the entertainment of the visitors, and declare they will make ample provision for all who may come. Visitors arriving here are met by reception committees of leading business men and quickly escorted to their homes. The visitor to the convention interested in nothing with the extreme cordiality of the Americus people. Two conventions are being entertained this week, with still another large one to come a few days later.

The sessions of the Georgia school convention are being held in the auditorium of the First Methodist church, and are presided over by Dr. Joseph Broughton, of Atlanta, president of the state association.

Features of the first session this afternoon were addresses by the Rev. R. R. Brown, pastor of the Savannah Independent Presbyterian church; Professor M. M. Parks, president of the Georgia Normal and Industrial college, at Milledgeville, and John L. Alexander, of Chicago, secondary division superintendent of the International Sunday School association. The convention music, as led by Professor E. O. Excell, of Chicago, and Professor Alvin W. Roper, of Winona Lake, Ind., was also an attractive phase of the first meeting.

Chief attention was given the address of Mr. Alexander, who is the chief speaker of the convention. Mr. Alexander has devoted many years of his work to boy and girl organizations, will deliver a series of lectures at this convention on the general subject of "The Sunday School and the Teen Age Boys and Girls." His address this afternoon was with reference to "The Home and the Sunday School," while that of one month hour was "Religion and the Teen Ages." In his afternoon address he emphasized the close relation between the home and the Bible school, urging that the school could accomplish for the young life which it should without the hearty co-operation of the home. In the evening lecture he emphasized the tendencies of the youth of to-day, and his subject of "Religious Progress may be found in the religious characters of history."

Other events of the afternoon and evening sessions were: A. R. Caldwell, of Atlanta, who spoke on "The Modern Departmental Sunday School;" the Rev. R. S. Brank, of Savannah, whose subject was "Methods of Church Theme. Increase;" Professor M. M. Parks, of Milledgeville, who discussed "Methods of Bible Study;" the Rev. Henry B. Mays, of Atlanta, whose theme was "Graded Lessons and the Development of Life."

The second day of the convention will be introduced with a sunrise prayer meeting, in which W. S. Witham, of Atlanta, will deliver a talk upon some Bible passages.

"AMERICA FIRST," DECLARES WILSON

finance. We must make up our minds what are the best things to do and what are the best ways to do them. We must put our money, our energy, our enthusiasm, our sympathy into these things, and we must have our judgments prepared and our spirits chastened against the coming of that day.

"America First."

"So that I am not speaking in a selfish spirit when I say that our interest. The basis of neutrality is symmetrical. It is summed up in this motto, 'America First.' Let us think of America before we think of Europe, in order that America may be fit to be Europe's friend when the day of tested friendship comes. The test of friendship is not now sympathy with the one side or the other, but getting ready to help both sides when the struggle is over.

"The basis of neutrality, gentlemen, is not indifference; it is not self interest. The basis of neutrality is sympathy for mankind. It is fairness; it is good will at bottom. It is impartiality of spirit and of judgment. I wish that all of our fellow citizens could realize that.

"There is in some quarters a disposition to create campers in this body politic. Men are even uttering slanders against the United States as if to excite her. Men are saying that if we should go to war upon either side there will be a divided American and abominable libel of ignorance. America is not all of it vocal just now. It is not all of it articulate. But for one have a complete and abiding faith in that great, silent body of Americans who are not standing up and shouting and are waiting to find out and support the duty of America. I am just as sure of their solidity and of their loyalty and of their unanimity, if we act justly, as I am that the history of this country has at every crisis and turning point illustrated this great principle.

Mediating Nation of the World.

"We are the mediating nation of the world. I do not mean that we undertake not to mind our own business and to mediate where other people are quarreling. I mean the word in a broader sense. We are compounded of the nations of the world. We mediate their blood; we mediate their traditions; we mediate their points, their tastes, their passions, we are the mediating nation of the world things. We are, therefore, able to understand all nations; we are able to understand them in the compound, not separately, as partisans, but unitedly as knowing and comprehending and embodying them all. It is in that sense that I mean that America is a mediating nation. The opinion of America, the action of America is ready to turn and free to turn in any direction.

"Did you ever deflect upon how almost all other nations, almost every other nation, has through long centuries been headed in one direction? That is not true of the United States. The United States has no racial momentum. It has no history back of it which makes it run all its energies and all its ambitions in one particular direction, and America is particularly free in this, that she has no hampering ambitions as a world power. If we have been obliged by circumstances or have considered ourselves to be obliged by circumstances, in the past to take territory which we otherwise would not have thought of taking, I believe I am right in saying that we have considered it our duty to administer that territory, not for ourselves, but for the people living in it, and to put this burden upon our consciences, not to think that this thing is ours for our use, but to regard ourselves as trustees of the great business for those to whom it does really belong, trustees ready to hand over the cosmic trust at any time when the business seems to make that possible and feasible. That is what I mean by saying we have no hampering ambitions. We do not want anything that does not belong to us. Isn't a nation in that position free to serve other nations, and isn't a nation like that ready to form some part of the assessing opinion of the world?

Not Dodging Trouble.

"My interest in the neutrality of the United States is not the petty desire to keep out of trouble. I have never looked for it, but I have always found it. I do not want to walk around trouble. If any man wants a scrap that is an interesting scrap and worth while, I am his man. I warn him that he is not going to draw me into the scrap for his advertisement, but if he is looking for trouble that is the trouble of men in general and I can help a little, why then I am in for it. But I am interested in neutrality because there is something so much greater to do than fight, because there is something there is a distinction waiting for this nation that no nation has ever yet had. That is the distinction of absolute self-control and self-mastery. Whom do you admire most among your friends? The irritable man? The man out of whom you can get a rise and start trying? The man who will fight at the drop of the hat whether he knows what the hat is dropped for or not?

"Don't you admire and don't you fear if you have to contest with him, the self-mastered man who watches you with calm eye and comes in only when you have carried the thing so far that you must be disposed? That is the man you must respect. That is the man you know has at the bottom much more fundamental and terrible courage than the irritable, fighting man.

"Now, I covet for America this splendid courage of reserve moral force, and I wanted to point out to you gentlemen simply this: There is news and news. There is what is called news from Turtle Bay, that starts out to be falsehood at the start in what it is said to signify, and which, if you could get the nation to believe it true, might disturb the equilibrium and our self-possession. We ought not to deal with things of that kind. We ought not to permit things of that kind to use up the electrical energy of the wires because the energy is malign. Its energy is not of the truth, its energy is of mischief. It is possible to sift the truth.

About Wire Reports.

"I have known some things to go out on the wires as true when there was only one man or one group of men who could have told the originators of the report whether it was true or not, and they were not told whether it was true or not, for fear it might be true. That sort of report ought not to go out over the wires.

"There is generally, if not always, somebody who knows whether that things is so or not, and in these days above all other days, we ought to put particular pains to resort to the one small group of men or to the one man, if there be but one, who know whether those things are true or not. The world ought to know the truth, but the world ought not at this period of unstable equilibrium to be disturbed by rumor, ought not to be disturbed by imaginative combinations of circumstances, or rather by circumstances stated in combination which do not belong in combination.

"For we are holding, not I, but you and gentlemen engaged like you, the balance in your hands. This unstable equilibrium rests upon scales that are in your hands. For the food of opinion, as I began by saying, is the news of the day. I have known many a man to go off at a tangent on information that was not reliable. Indeed, that describes the majority of men. The world is held stable my the man who waits for the next day to find out whether the report was true or not.

"We cannot afford, therefore, to let the rumors of irresponsible persons and origins get into the atmosphere of the United States. We are trustees for what I venture to say is the greatest heritage that any nation ever had, the love of justice and righteousness and human liberty. For, fundamentally, those are the things to which America is addicted, and to which she is devoted. There are groups of selfish men in the United States, there are coteries where sinister things are purposed, but the great heart, of the American people is just as sound and true as it ever was. And it is a single heart; it is the heart of America. It is not a heart made up of sections selected out of other countries.

View of People at Home.

"So that what I try to remind myself of every day when I am almost overcome by perplexities, what I try to remember, is what the people at home are thinking about. I try to put myself in the place of the one who does not know all the things that I know and ask myself what he would like the policy of this country to be. Not the talkative man, not the partisan man, but the man that remembers first that he is a republican or democrat, or that his parents were German or English, but who remembers first that the whole destiny of modern affairs centers largely upon his being an American first of all.

"If I permitted myself to be a partisan in this present struggle I would be unworthy to represent you. If I permitted myself to forget the people who are not partisans I would be unworthy to represent you. I am not saying that I am worthy to represent you, but I do claim this degree of detachment, that before everything else I love America."

Noyes Introduced Wilson.

Mr. Wilson was introduced by Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, and was the only speaker.

"We are gathered here today," said Mr. Noyes, "the membership of what is, I believe, in scope and importance of activities the greatest co-operative, non-profit making organization in the world.

"The function of the Associated Press is to furnish its members a service of world news that shall be untainted and without bias of any sort. To insure this we have formed an organization that is owned and controlled by its members and by them alone, one that is our servant and not our master.

"So we are here today, democrats and republicans, Protestants, Catholics and Jews, conservatives and radicals, wets and drys, differing on every subject on which men in public life are in demanding that, so far as is humanly possible, no trace of partisanship or bias or of prejudice shall be found in our news report.

"Entrusted with the news, we are quite able and more than willing individually to supply the necessary editorial.

"Thus by easy steps I have come to the fact that because of its traditions and its code, and perhaps also because of the never ceasing watchfulness of its members, it has come to pass that few people on earth are capable of handling management of the Associated Press any points on maintaining a strict, though benevolent, neutrality with all questions which we can be neutral and still be what we are—loyal Americans.

"We point with pride to the years and the occasions through which we have balanced on every discoverable fence.

Honest Neutral Always Target.

"We know, too—none better—that the genuine neutral, the honest neutral, is always the target of every partisan and we find some solace that this fact is now being demonstrated to the world at large.

"Today, however, we willingly lower our eyes to one who has demonstrated in these agonizing times his mastership of the principles of true neutrality, and who, fully realizing the dreadful consequences of any departure from these principles, has nobly borne this terrible burden of responsibility in guarding the peace, the honor and the dignity of our common country.

"Our distinguished guest may surely know that in the perplexities and trials of these days so black for humanity, he has our thought, loyal and affectionate support.

"God grant him continuing success in his high aims for the peaceful progress of the people of the United States.

"At these annual gatherings it is our custom to offer but one toast.

"I ask you to drink to the health of Woodrow Wilson, the president of the United States."

The toast was drunk standing.

REGULATIONS TO BAR PINK BOLL WEEVIL

Washington, April 20.—Cotton manufacturers and importers today conferred with department of agriculture officials on tentative regulations for importation and use of foreign cotton, designed to prevent introduction into the United States of the pink boll weevil. Some manufacturers declared they felt the proposed measures were too drastic and recommended modification.

Department officials desired to learn the attitude of the trade before making the regulations permanent.

C. J. H. Woodberry, of Boston, secretary of an association of cotton manufacturers, proposed methods of or partially the covering of the Egyptian cotton before it is removed from the gins. He said foreign cotton crops will be moved forward to the United States before the disinfection regulations are imposed so that to verify cotton to be free of diseases and pests. Control over the imported cotton at mills is reserved, under a system of screening and licenses.

RESERVE BANK MATTERS DISCUSSED BY BOARD

Washington, April 20.—The advisory council to the federal reserve board met with the board today and discussed limitations on the purchase of bankers' acceptances made by nonmember banks, foreign exchange operations by federal reserve banks and admission of state banks to the reserve system. They took up also questions of penalizing member banks which allow their reserve deposits to fall below the required figures and whether acceptances based on movement of goods between two foreign countries should be eligible for discount.

EXPERT CONDEMNS ATLANTA SCHOOLS

E. M. Robinson, Y. M. C. A. Worker, Declares High Schools Worse Than Any in the Country.

That Atlanta's high schools are in a worse condition than any such schools throughout the country is the statement made by E. M. Robinson, senior secretary of the boys' work of the Young Men's Christian association, in an address made by him before the Rotary club Tuesday.

Mr. Robinson has visited nearly every high school in the country and is considered an authority on the subject.

In his address, Mr. Robinson said:

"I have visited the high schools of practically every city in the United States and I must state candidly that your high schools in Atlanta are in the worst condition I have ever seen."

It was a "father and son" luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce assembly hall, to which many Rotarians brought their sons. Mr. Robinson was introduced by Rotarian A. A. Jameson, secretary of boys' work of the local Y. M. C. A., and was heard with keen interest.

His comment on conditions of the public schools in Atlanta was incidental to his speech. He said that he had never seen any schools where the physical condition of the buildings and equipment were as bad, where there was such woeful lack of adequate playground facilities and ventilation and other necessary accommodations. He urged the Rotarians and citizens of Atlanta generally to take such an interest in the public schools that necessary improvements would have to be made.

Mr. Robinson is regarded by many as the leading authority on boy-life subjects in America. The remainder of his discussion was along the line of development of closer and more friendly relationship between fathers and sons, and he was warmly applauded by the Rotarians.

George Pauss made the principal Rotarian speech of the day, giving an interesting history of the development of the laundry business in America. Other Rotarians who spoke were Preston Arkwright, Arthur Gillis, R. C. Darby and Willis Timmons.

ORDINARY

I confirm my announcement, already made, as a candidate for Ordinary, Election April 30. I am encouraged by the many assurances of support, voluntarily given, which have come to me, and will very much appreciate any others that may be given. I need the support and assurances of my friends, as I am vigorously opposed by strong local political organizations. I am making no personal fight, but contending for certain principles and reforms which have been announced. Whether elected or not, I feel that I am rendering a public service by making this race. I have strong confidence in my appeal to the people.

VIRGINIA ASKS MILLIONS FROM WEST VIRGINIA

Washington, April 20.—A proposal to compromise the Virginia-West Virginia debt controversy through payment by West Virginia of $4,314,667.57, with interest since January 1, 1861, was submitted in the supreme court today by Attorney General Pollard, of Virginia. The interest probably would bring the total of this payment to about $18,000,000.

Attorney General Pollard also submitted for the court's consideration in case West Virginia rejects the compromise offer, a printed argument that the recent finding of Special Master Littlefield placed too high a valuation on Virginia assets which West Virginia will be entitled to share.

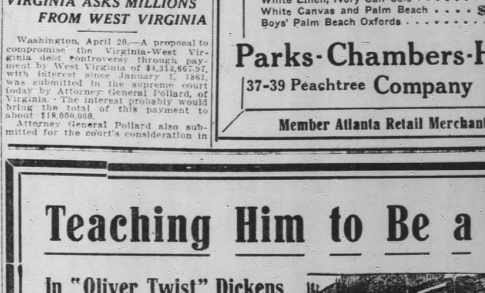
In "Oliver Twist" Dickens Gives the World Its Greatest Picture of Criminal Life



The Story of Fagin

and his famous pickpocket band told in "Oliver Twist," is only one of the many character stories so graphically told by this master writer. Their doings and sayings have become a part of everyday conversation. Old and young alike must know DICKENS to understand people you meet every day.

The Pickpocket Trust In the United States

This sounds sensational, but Magistrate Levy, of New York City, a man who knows, says, "The pickpocket trust is well intrenched, has unlimited capital, retains its own lawyers, has the backing of bonding companies, a complete territory organization, and is controlled by an invisible board of directors." He tells in detail how the "field men" operate, how the managers and lawyers operate, and how the whole band is controlled by the officers. This story of present-day conditions makes the story of "Oliver Twist" give new interest to the great masterpiece of Dickens.

The Constitution's Distribution of DICKENS' WORKS

Is immensely successful. We anticipated this to a degree, because Dickens' books have steadily increased in popularity, and are read more today than ever before. The hundreds of characters which this immortal writer created are as well known as those who live around us, and are a part of English literature. Not to know them is to be ignorant of the best books in our language.

Lowndes-Montgomery Wedding Was Beautiful Social Event

A beautiful event last night, centering the social interest, was the marriage of Miss Jeannette Lowndes and Mr. LaFayette Montgomery, which took place at the First Baptist church.

A large congregation witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Dr. John E. White, and afterwards a handsome reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Lowndes, in Ansley Park.

Lilacs, lilies and yellow marguerites were the flowers prevailing in the decorative plan of the wedding, and these, with the flesh-colored gowns of the bride's attendants, made a delicate and beautiful color scheme.

At the church the chancel was banked with palms, effectively outlined against the prevailing white of the church interior, and bursts of Easter lilies rose out of the luxury of green. Appropriate organ music was played during the marriage service.

The Bride's Costume.

The bride entered the church with her father, and she was beautiful in her wedding gown of white satin charmeuse. Made in modified empire style, and with court train, it was embroidered in pearls and veiled with chiffon cloth. The tulle veil was adjusted with orange blossoms, and worn away from the face, and the bridal bouquet was of valley lilies.

The Attendants.

Miss Emily Lowndes, maid of honor, and Miss Louise Riley, first bridesmaid, wore flesh-colored chiffon taffeta combined with chiffon cloth, and they carried arm bouquets of lilacs tied with lilac tulle.

The bridesmaids, Misses Virginia Bowman, Katherine Wyly, Laura Lee Cooney and Mary Butler, wore pretty white taffeta gowns, each fashioned differently, and their bouquets were lilacs and yellow marguerites tied with yellow tulle.

Mr. Wimberly Peters was best man. Messrs. Frank Martin, Sanford Rust, A. W. Hill, Gerald O'Keefe and Philip L'Engle were groomsmen; Messrs. Edw. C. Peters, Milton Dargan, F. S. Boykin, Asa Candler, E. W. Martin and Daniel B. Harris were ushers.

Mrs. Lowndes wore an elegant toilette in black jetted net. Receiving with her at home were Mrs. Arthur Montgomery and Mrs. J. F. Johnson, of Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. Harry Williams, of Columbus; Mrs. Holland Lowndes, and Mrs. George S. Lowndes, Jr.

Mrs. Montgomery wore gray taffeta and lace. Mrs. Johnson was gowned in white taffeta.

Mrs. Harry Williams wore white satin charmeuse and lace. Mrs. Holland Lowndes wore a black sequin gown. Mrs. George Lowndes, Jr., was gowned in pink chiffon cloth combined with taffeta.

At the Reception.

At the house there was an artistic decoration in palms and variegated foliage plants with a profusion of lilacs in white and lavender.

An elegant supper was served, the bridal party seated at a handsomely appointed table in the dining room, its centerpiece a silver basket of lilacs and yellow marguerites. The silver candlesticks and yellow shades and other decorative details repeated the lilac and yellow colors. The places were marked by white satin boxes painted in lilacs, those for the ladies holding cakes and for the gentlemen cigarettes.

Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery went north on their wedding trip, and returning they will be at home for the present with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Montgomery.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowndes, her father one of Atlanta's prominent citizens and capitalists. A debutante of last season, she is one of the prettiest and most attractive young women in the social life. Mr. Montgomery is one of the most prominent and successful of Atlanta's younger business men, and a popular member of the clubs.

Mrs. Hoyt's Luncheon.

Mrs. William Hoyt entertained at a pretty luncheon yesterday at her home in Ansley Park in compliment to Mrs. George M. Brown, Jr., a recent bride.

Quantities of honeysuckle decorated the house, and the centerpiece of the luncheon table was a basket filled with white iris and wild pink azaleas.

The silver candlesticks were tied with pink tulle bows and had pink shades.

Each guest's place was marked with a tiny basket filled with bonbons and a card attached by ribbons to the basket had the guest's name in gold.

Mrs. Hoyt was gowned in blue charmeuse and lace and Mrs. Brown wore a gown of Pompadour silk with big black hat faced with pink and trimmed in flowers.

The guests were Misses Laura Cowles, Dorothy Hebert, of New Orleans; Elizabeth Morgan, Carolyn King, Flora Crowe, Carrie Norcross, Corrie Hoyt Brown, Margaret Hoyt, Helen McCarty, Virginia Lipscomb, Mrs. Charles M. Sciple and Miss Sally Eugenia Brown.

Tea at Seminary.

Mrs. Mary Lovelace Hurt, director of the department of voice in Washington seminary, and Miss Caroline Duncan, director of the department of expression, entertained their classes at a delightful tea yesterday afternoon, with an hour of reading and song. The guests were received in the parlors of Washington seminary on Peachtree road.

The house was charmingly decorated with spring blossoms and wild flowers. Tea was served by Miss Annie Sharpe.

The young ladies who rendered selections in reading or song were: Misses Julia Murphy, Rosa Lee Both, Addie Harper, Margaret Pratt, Catherine Terril, Sarah Clements and Elizabeth Shumate.

Bean-Smith.

The wedding of Miss Lucile Bean and Mr. Walter E. Smith, of Columbus, was a pretty event of last evening, taking place at 8:30 o'clock at Park Street Methodist church. The artistic decorations of the church were in green and white, the altar being banked with palms, ferns and bride roses, and at the sides of the altar were candelabra with white tapers.

The bride entered the church with her father, Mr. William R. Bean.

She presented a charming picture in her wedding gown of white faille silk, combined with tulle and embroidered in seed pearls, and she wore a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom, and a crescent of diamonds, her father's gift. Her tulle veil fell from a little cap of lace, and was caught with sprays of orange blossoms, and her flowers were a shower bouquet of valley lilies.

Mrs. Maynard B. Smith, of Macon, was matron of honor and wore pink Georgette crepe and carried a shower of pink roses and white sweet peas.

Miss Ruth Bean, of Montgomery, was maid of honor, and was gowned in pink Georgette crepe and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Edwina Harper, Miss Mary Disbro, Miss Lois Carroll and Miss Theodosia Andrews. Their gowns were of white Georgette crepe and they carried pink roses.

Mr. Theo B. Bean was Mr. Smith's best man, and the ushers were Mr. T. G. Reeves and Mr. Kinsell Berry, of Columbus. The groomsmen were Mr. E. B. Booth, Mr. Forest Wood, Mr. A. C. Chancellor, Jr., and Mr. W. E. Joy.

Little Miss Martha Buchannan was ring-bearer and Misses Annie Griffin and Mary Magill were the flower girls. They wore dainty white net dresses with pink ribbons and carried baskets of pink roses. The little ring-bearer also wore a white net dress and pink ribbons.

A handsome reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Gordon street, immediately after the church ceremony.

A profusion of pink roses were the flowers used in the decorations throughout the house, with palms, smilax and ferns.

A large gilt basket filled with pink roses was in the center of the bride's table in the dining room, and the candle shades and other appointments of the pretty table were pink.

The bride's mother wore a handsome gown of white brocaded crepe meteor, with corsage bouquet of valley lilies and the bride's grandmother, Mrs. James S. Buchannan, was gowned in gray crepe faille and she wore a corsage bouquet of Parma violets.

Mrs. D. A. Andrews, of Columbus, and Mrs. Jack B. Mell assisted in entertaining.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for New Orleans, and on their return they will go to housekeeping in Columbus. The bride's going-away suit was of blue faille with hat to match.

Not only did each member guarantee that he would pay at least $1 for his tax, but the club agreed to wear their badges Thursday to assist the ladies' Tag Day committees, and to use all their effort to encourage larger contributions.

CREMATORY DISPUTE MAY BE REFERRED TO A COMMISSION

A commission to inspect the crematory plant may be appointed for the purpose of settling the dispute between the city and the New York Destructor company.

Judge Newman declared Tuesday morning that such a commission might, in his opinion, settle the controversy without any further expensive litigation.

"Such a commission," stated Judge Newman, "could determine whether or not the city should accept the plant."

He addressed his remarks to Attorney W. D. Ellis, Jr., who represents the city, and Attorney George Spence, representing the company. He asked them to think over the suggestion and let him hear from them Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The quaintness of quillings, ruffles, flower trimmings, wide, wide skirts, low shoulder effects, pompadour silks, distended flounces and all the softened and modified characteristics of fashion at the great Napoleon's court.

Claiming special mention among the newest of new street dresses, is the Martha Washington short-waisted bodice, with very full skirt—crinoline faced at bottom, with fold of black velvet ribbon; the dress is fashioned of heavy, beautiful gros de londres, in novelty check effect. So old-fashioned and charming, it appears to have just stepped out of the time of Martha Washington. Others of this same style, in taffeta, both Pompadour and plain.

At $10

Are such lovely, adorable Dresses as we have never seen. There are superb little taffetas, two-tier, accordion-pleated skirts, with dainty bodice of soft Georgette crepe or chiffon in cream or white; the colors are exquisite! Seafoam green, orchid, maize, seashell pink, blues and so on through a long list of pretty shades.

Then, at this same price are scores of other styles equally dainty and charming, and made of crepes de chine, soft satins, etc.

Also, Street Dresses in pretty and becoming styles galore, in this sale, at $10.

In the $15 Group

There are some of the loveliest Dresses imaginable—and every one with some new and dainty fashion feature to commend it. Chiffon taffetas, soft, shimmering satins, dainty nets with taffeta boleros. One superb little dance, or party, or dinner dress, is of soft net, ivory white, with "petal skirt," the scalloped flounces outlined with fine embroidery in Priscilla pink; the fetching little bolero is of taffeta in the same shade of pink.

In the $25 Collection

Are elegant Dresses for the opera, for matinees, for luncheons, for teas, for dinners, for dances, and for all social functions—in fine Georgette crepes, lovely meteors, new and fashionable striped crepes de chine, smart black-and-white taffetas for morning or afternoon wear. We wish we could describe every one individually, there are so many clamoring for expression—but we ask you to see them this morning if possible—they make a stronger appeal than the spoken or written word.

Note: This is a very remarkable offer today—one worthy of your inspection.

Workers Announce Chairmen And Stations for "Tag Day"

There is a great deal of work connected with "Tag Day," which is to be promoted in Atlanta Thursday, April 22, by the Sheltering Arms society, but there is pleasure a part of it, too.

The pleasure is in the easy way it presents for the people who buy "tags" to do good; also in the opportunity it gives a number of well known women to study the "passing throng," as it appears on the streets each day. There are more committees to be at work tomorrow than ever before have volunteered and they will be stationed in highways and byways as well as on the main street corners and in all public buildings and department stores.

Mrs. William H. Kiser is president of the Sheltering Arms society, which has headquarters tomorrow in the old Cranksbaw store in the Century building, near the Whitehall street viaduct.

The Sheltering Arms society fosters the movement of day nurseries and kindergartens in the congested districts, these patronized by 600 children whose mothers must work out of their homes to support them. The institution stands for the highest form of philanthropy, that of helping worthy people to help themselves.

"MY HEALTH IS PERFECT"

So Says A North Carolina Lady In Telling What She Owes To Cardui, The Woman's Tonic.

Mt. Airy, N. C.—Mrs. Ada Hall, of this place, says: "About six years ago I got in very bad health. I suffered terrible pains in my abdomen and back. I dreaded to see the sun rise and I dreaded to see it set, for I suffered such agony. No one except myself will ever know how badly I suffered. The doctor said I was suffering as a result of the menopause.

As nothing gave me any relief, I asked the doctor if I hadn't better try Cardui. He said it might help you, and told my husband to get me a bottle. At this time I was so weak I could not lift my head, and my voice was so weak, people had to lean towards the bed to hear what I said. I looked so bad and had such a dark color that I looked like a dead woman, and my relatives thought I would never get up again.

I took one bottle of Cardui and it relieved the pain, and suffering so much that my husband got another bottle, and that improved me still more. I began to strengthen and gradually got well. I have now had better health for six years than I ever had in all my life. I have taken no medicine since, and my health is perfect.

Cardui is the finest medicine a woman could use.

Try it. At druggists.

ATLANTANS INVITED TO BARACA MEETING TO BE HELD IN ROME

An invitation to attend the annual convention of the Georgia Baraca-Philathea association at Rome was extended to Atlanta and her civic organizations by Norman F. Williamson, general convention secretary of the Georgia, at the monthly meeting last evening of the Baraca-Philathea union in the Second Baptist church. The convention assembles Sunday, May 2, and continues through May 10.

Workers are actively engaged all over the state in arranging for the largest Baraca-Philathea state convention held in the south. There are several thousand members of these classes in Rome. It is expected that the 52,000 members in the state will elect several hundred delegates.

A special train the Atlanta Baraca-Philathea special, will carry the members of local classes to Rome, leaving at 7 o'clock in the morning, May 2. The classes will be taught during the trip. Upon arriving in Rome the Atlanta representatives will attend the morning church services and return to Rome after the convention address in the evening.

Another special train, the Georgia Baraca-Philathea special, carrying delegates from several parts of the state, will leave Atlanta on the same schedule, so far as known at present this consolidated train will be composed of one coach from Augusta, two from Macon, one from Columbus, one from Savannah and one from Albany.

Mrs. Archibald Davis, who has a Philathea class of 150, and who was active in the local organization working in connection with the Chapman-Alexander meetings, will be one of the principal speakers during the convention.

Committee Will Work To Get Big Methodist Meeting for Atlanta

The committee appointed by the Atlanta Ministerial Alliance to appear before the committee on time and place of the general conference of the Methodist church, south, in Nashville Thursday for the purpose of bringing this great ecclesiastical body to Atlanta in 1918 will leave this evening.

The committee is composed of the Rev. A. M. Hughlett, the Rev. C. O. Jones, Asa G. Candler and Fred Houser.

Although there are several southern cities working actively to land this conference, Mr. Hughlett states that the committee is sanguine of success. It is observed that the new Emory university, established since Vanderbilt university recently passed without the pale of the Methodist church, would receive a great stimulus from the presence of the thousands of churchmen who attend the quadrennial meeting of the conference. It is also pointed out that should the committee on time and place select Atlanta this would be an incentive to those having charge of the new institution to carry through their plans to the greatest degree of completion possible.

No immediate answer will be given the Atlanta committee and it is expected that several weeks may elapse before the decision is reached.

FEDERATION OF LABOR OPENS ANNUAL MEETING

Officers Arrive in Columbus for First Session of Convention Today.

Columbus, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—S. B. Marks, of Atlanta, president; Robert Fencher, of Savannah, secretary, and other officers and members of the Georgia Federation of Labor, have arrived in the city to attend the annual convention of the federation, which begins tomorrow. The credentials of 119 delegates who will be in attendance have been received.

Addresses of welcome and response, a preliminary business session and entertainment features, will mark the first day of the convention.

O'Pry Is Candidate.

Macon, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—Macon delegates to the Georgia Federation of Labor convention in Columbus tomorrow departed for the west Georgia city tonight, there being 25 in the party. There is much interest in the Columbus meeting in local labor circles because of the fact that G. C. O'Pry, president of the Macon Central Labor union, will be a candidate for the state presidency. Macon will not ask for the 1916 convention because she entertained the convention last year.

SWYNT IN WILL HEARING

Testifies Washington Was of Unsound Mind.

Macon, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—Dr. Roger C. Swynt, of the state hospital for the insane, testified in the Bibb superior court this morning that in his opinion the late Hugh V. Washington, a lineal descendant of George Washington, the first president of the United States, was of unsound mind when he drew his will in 1905 disposing of an estate valued at $125,000. Dr. Swynt had been summoned by heirs-at-law of the late Mr. Washington, residing in Monroe county and in Augusta, who are endeavoring to have the will set aside because they do not share in the estate.

Attorney Dupont Guerry, representing the defense, asked Dr. Swynt a hypothetical question, 1,500 words in length, based on 100 depositions of several witnesses who had sworn that Mr. Washington was sane, but the witness said he preferred to base his judgment on the will itself, declaring that the untrue and conformity of the will did not harmonize with the hypothesis of his sanity.

The contention of the heirs trying to break the will is that Mr. Washington was laboring under a delusion when he executed the will and that if did not represent his own will and determination.

The entire estate was left to Mrs. Ellen W. Bellamy, of Macon, sister of Mr. Washington, for her lifetime, and at her death the balance, after several bequests are paid, to go to the Mission Historical society. The case will not be finished for a day or two yet.

Cobb Convict Caught.

Marietta, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—Three prisoners escaped from the Cobb county jail during Sunday night. They were D. C. Payne, held on a charge of robbing an express office and passing forged money orders; J. Chappell and Joe Bowles, charged with misdemeanors. Chappell was found by Chief of Police Looper, Deputy Sheriff George M. Hicks and Tom Sanders three miles from town in the Noonday railroad cut today and easily captured. He refused to know nothing of the other two prisoners.

BROOKS CO. CLUB THROWS HAT INTO RING FOR HIGHWAY

Quitman, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—At an executive session of the governing board of the Brooks County Industrial club, held last night, the county of Brooks, after having stayed out up to the present time, of any definite Dixie highway route alignment, has thrown its hat into the ring, and proposes to put forward the winning highway route.

At the close the following statement was handed press representatives:

"Brooks county has watched with intense interest the various routes proposed for the Dixie highway. The county has had an official representative at every highway meeting which has been held since the first mention was made in regard to the Dixie highway. Up to the present time, the county has remained decidedly neutral in its attitude towards all proposed routes. During the past few days confidential information makes it evident that unless a more direct and feasible western route through Georgia is put forward at once and backed up by all of western Georgia, this section will lose the Dixie highway. We have, therefore, called a meeting for the 25th, at which time the route will be announced. The Quitman Country club will serve a banquet for all delegates at the close of the meeting. We believe the route selected at this meeting will win."

On the same day the county commissioners of Brooks county will call a $200,000 bond issue for roads and concrete bridges. This bond issue will be voted on within thirty days, and the money from said issue will become available inside of sixty days. Brooks county is working in conjunction with Colquitt county.

J. B. NORMAN DIES.

Noted Philanthropist and the Founder of Norman Institute.

Moultrie, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—After an illness of several weeks Hon. J. B. Norman died last night at his home in this county near Norman Park. He was prominent in the politics of the county, having represented this district in the senate several times, in addition to having held various other offices.

Mr. Norman was best known, perhaps, for his philanthropy, having given large sums of money to churches and schools. He built and endowed Norman Institute ten years ago, and this has grown to be one of the best educational institutions in south Georgia. His loss will be keenly felt throughout this entire section. In addition to his wife, Mr. Norman leaves two sons, Frank and Rucker, and four daughters, Mrs. J. H. Hall, Mrs. Sage Harrell, Mrs. Charles Heath and Mrs. A. W. Burns. His kinship in the county is large, being closely related to several prominent citizens of Coquitt. His death is mourned as a public loss not only in this county, but throughout this entire section. Burial occurred this afternoon in the family burial ground near his home.

PACKING PLANT PROVES BIG AD FOR MOULTRIE

Moultrie, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—Told the public through the columns of the best advertising card this city has ever had, Moultrie's packing plant demonstrated again today by the arrival of nearly seven hundred visitors from Berrien and adjoining counties, who came to inspect the enterprise.

They came in automobiles and by train, there having been nearly two hundred machines used, while 150 visitors came by railroad. The city was alive to the occasion and received them with open arms. After an inspection of the plant the visitors were shown about the extensive stock farm of J. J. Battle, 3 miles from the city.

Hardly a day passes but what there is at least ten automobile loads of visitors are in the city for the purpose of seeing what the packing house looks like and what it is doing.

HARALSON FARMERS CUT COTTON AND FERTILIZER

Tallapoosa, Ga., April 20.—(Special.)—Careful inquiry among farmers from all sections of this county develop the fact that the cotton acreage has been cut fully 20 per cent, and that grain and hay crops will take the place of the cotton. The fertilizer sales are about 40 per cent of what they were last year.

Judge T. A. Hutcheson has been appointed county farm demonstrator and Miss Mary Stone has been appointed canning club agent. Mr. Hutcheson has already organized a boys' corn club of 150 members, and established 26 demonstration plots. He is busy this week organizing the girls' canning club.

NO STRICT REGULATIONS ABOUT BATHING SUITS

There will be no severe restrictions on bathing suits at Piedmont park this summer, states Park Manager J. O. Cochran.

The bather can wear any kind of an aquatic costume which will not call for the enforcement of the city ordinance against public indecency.

It will be recalled that last summer there was considerable agitation over the kind of a bathing suit that should be worn and a case was made against a young man for donning a suit that was a single garment, very sleeveless and very legless. Judge Nash R. Broyles, who was then presiding, dismissed the case on the ground that so long as a bather wore a suit that was not indecent he could not be prosecuted.

So this year the ban against single garments that are decollete and also brevitated will be lifted and the bathers will be trusted as to appearing in suits that might shock modesty.

FOUR NEW FLUSHERS TO WASH OFF STREETS

Four additional street flushers will be received by the sanitary department Wednesday and will be put into commission by Thursday night.

The are now twelve street flushers in use and the four new ones will make sixteen. With the sixteen at work every night, about 24 miles of paved streets will be washed.

Attorney General Warren Grice left Tuesday afternoon on a trip to Texas and Oklahoma for the purpose of asking those states, in which receivers have been appointed for the State Mutual Life Insurance company, of Rome, Ga., to place the affairs of the company in the hands of Georgia Insurance Commissioner William A. Wright.

At about the time when Judge A. W. Fite appointed a receiver for the company in Georgia, receivers were also named in Texas and Oklahoma. Commissioner Wright was later placed in charge in Georgia. Attorney General Grice will ask that the receivers in Texas and Oklahoma surrender the assets under their jurisdiction to the Georgia commissioner.

Murphey, who had his hand seriously injured in a spraying machine last week, will not lose the hand or arm, unless unlooked-for complications arise. Nearly all the flesh was torn off portions of the hand and arm, but amputation will probably not be necessary.

Mothers Tell of Mother's Friend

Experience is or should be our best teacher. Women who have obeyed the highest and noblest of all sacrifices, the struggle for the life of others, should have a better idea of helpful influence than those who theorize from observation.

At any rate when a prospective grandmother urges her daughter to do as she did—to use "Mother's Friend"—there is ample reason to believe it the right kind of advice.

Its purpose is to furnish pliancy to the muscles, to take away the strain on the cords and ligaments, to relieve the tension of nerves and tendons so apt to provoke or aggravate nausea, morning sickness, lockjaw of the limbs and so on. It is applied externally.

Although, in the nature of things, a woman would use "Mother's Friend" but rarely, yet so effective has it been found that this splendid remedy is on sale in most drug stores throughout the United States. It has been prenared by Bradfield Regulator Co., 306 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., and advertised by us for over twenty years. Ask at the drug store for a bottle of "Mother's Friend." It is worth while.

Quickly Relieves Without Distress

The congestion of waste and refuse from the stomach, fermenting in the bowels, generates poisonous gases that occasion distress and indigestion, Health and comfort demand that this condition be speedily relieved and the foul mass expelled.

The well-founded objection most people have to the violence of cathartic and purgative agents is overcome by using the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A dose at night brings relief next morning, without discomfort or inconvenience. A free trial sufficient to be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

Bisland and Hiett Fling Away Another Ball Game; Five Errors Their Quota

WILLIAMS TO GO.

Mobile, Ala., April 20.—(Special.)—Pitcher Roy Williams did not accompany the Atlanta team to Birmingham, but was sent home, and will, in all probability, be disposed of to some class B team.

By G. J. Flournoy.

Mobile, Ala., April 20.—(Special.)—Some bad ball playing on the part of the Atlanta team in the early stages of the last game of the series with Moolle this afternoon, in which Shortstop Bisland and Pitcher Hiett played the leading parts, was responsible for the loss of the game to the Gulls, by the score of 7 to 2.

Hiett did not look right from the jump, and then the infield began to throw balls in every direction, and, with two hits in the second inning, followed by the big muss up, Mobile scored two runs.

Two more hits in the third and some wildness on the part of Hiett, who, on the opening day here, looked like big league timber, was the cause of three more runs.

Pearson relieved Hiett in the fifth, and he had only one bad inning, and that was in the seventh, when he hit Perry to start with, and a single and double that followed, sent two runs across the plate.

How Locals Scored.

Atlanta scored their first run of the game in the second inning on a double by Moran, a sacrifice hit by Bisland and a single by Bimby.

The Crackers did not score again until the eighth, when four hits netted them one run. In this inning the visitors had a chance to clean up, with the bases filled twice, but a fast double play clipped them off.

In the ninth, after two were down, Rumbel and Tullos singled in succession, but Northern robbed Jenkins of a hit by taking his hard-hit ball in right after a run.

Moran featured the game in the eighth with a swell running catch in deep left center.

Harkins, a former Georgia-Alabama league pitcher, made his first appearance for the Mobile club, and while he was hit harder than the Atlanta pitchers, he managed to tighten up in the pinches.

The Atlanta team left here tonight at 7:45 o'clock for Birmingham.

VANDERBILT TO PLAY JACKETS HERE TODAY

Commodores Then Go to Macon for Two Games, Returning Here Saturday.

The Vanderbilt Commodores will be the opponents of the Tech Yellow Jackets this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Grant field in a game that is fraught with considerable interest and will have considerable bearing on the final ranking of the S. I. A. A. frame.

After the game this afternoon the Commodores go to Macon to play games with the Mercer Baptists there on Thursday and Friday, returning here for a game with the Jackets on Saturday.

This arrangement is due to the Baptists being unable to get the ball park today, when the Commodores were scheduled to play them.

CRACKERS VISIT SLAGVILLE TODAY

Play Barons Four Games. First Meeting Between Old Rivals This Season. Home Monday.

GAME IN DETAIL.

The game between the Barons and the Crackers in Birmingham today will be called play by play by Dick Jemison, at his baseball parlors on Viaduct place, this afternoon. The game starts at 3:30 o'clock. The admission fee is 25 cents.

The meeting between these two old rivals is always fraught with interest. They have as much delight in trimming one another as the usual college team does in stopping a winning streak of their most dreaded rivals.

Omar Hardgrove, who always gave the Crackers a battle in every game that pitched, will probably be shot against the Crackers in the opening game today, with Wallace back of the wood. Manager Smith will use Frank Browning against the Barons in the first game, with Niederkorn working back of the mask.

By glancing at the two batting orders below it will be noted that every man in the Birmingham line-up has played against the Crackers before, while but five men in the Cracker line-up, Bisland, Williams, Eibel, Moran and Browning, have faced the Barons previously.

The probable line-up for the opening game today will be:

BIRMINGHAM	ATLANTA
Carroll, 1b	Lee, lf
Stewart, cf.	Williams, 2b
Clark, 2b	Eibel, 1b
Hamilton, rf	Moran, cf
McBride, lf.	Bisland, ss
Hemingway, 3b	Rumbel, rf
Elliam, ss	Jenkins, 2b
Wallace, c	Niederkorn, c
Hardgrove, p	Browning, p

After the Birmingham series, the Crackers come home for three games with the Mobile Gulls, then start the week with four games in New Orleans, returning home then for twenty-four straight games.

Yielding to this power of the press, the pugilist backed out of the door.

MOREHOUSE DEFEATS TENNESSEE NORMAL

In the greatest game of the season the Morehouse Tigers came back strong and defeated the State Normal aggregation of Nashville by the score of 9 to 5. Nance was on the mound for Morehouse and pitched superbly, not a man was able to reach first until the fatal ninth.

Morehouse hit the ball hard from the beginning and by the sixth inning had piled up enough runs to give the Tigers some comfortable lead and ultimate victory, although the ninth-inning rally kept up until the end of the eighth.

In the ninth the visitors had some success and scored five runs on errors, coupled with base hits, paved the way. Fisher, the little catcher for Morehouse, caught a great game and coaxed out a homer.

It is unfair to mention the feats accomplished by the individuals of the home team because the whole machine worked in mid-season form. Lee, for the visitors, did some good batting.

CHARGE OF RING RULE IS MADE BY DONEHOO

Promises to Return Thousands of Dollars Annually to People From Lucrative Office.

The first challenges in the race for ordinary were flung last night when Colonel Paul Donehoo, candidate for the late Judge John H. Wilkinson's unexpired term, accused his opponents of ring politics and of trading offices for the position of ordinary.

"I will return the people of this county $10,000 annually, or more, if the proceeds of the offices are more," said Donehoo, who pledged himself to accept only $5,000 as his yearly compensation.

"This most lucrative office should not pay more than a judge of the superior court is paid, and the people have so voted. I challenge my opponents to make this same pledge," said Colonel Donehoo.

In his charges the candidate, who was the principal speaker at the first mass meeting to be held by any candidate in the race, named Carlos Mason, Arnold Broyles, Thomas Jeffries and Marcellus Anderson as the slate-makers. "Let's smash this hand-picked slate," he said, accusing the opposing candidates of trading high salaried jobs to men on the Jeffries ticket and others, and of also creating elaborate jobs for men who furnished their support and influence."

"We will show how Henry Wood was sacrificed and fought out of the race for ordinary by the politicians and will be exposed in detail at a mass meeting to be held in the large assembly room on the third floor of the Third National Bank building Thursday night," said William E. Arnold, for many years a law partner of Colonel Donehoo, "and facts, figures and details of interest to the voters of Fulton county."

"Have you ever seen a politician with his hands in his own pockets," said Leonard J. Grossman, attorney and colleague of Colonel Donehoo. "Our candidate pledges to return to the people of this county thousands of dollars each year. He was elected coroner by a plurality of 9,000 votes, and when the facts are known a larger following will make him Judge Donehoo, the people's candidate," he said.

"A lawyer should be judge of the court of ordinary," said L. N. Huff, well-known business man, who delivered an enthusiastic talk.

Other speakers who addressed the meeting urged the slogan: "Elect Donehoo ordinary and smash the slate."

LOSSES WERE HEAVY IN FIGHT FOR HILL 60

British Captured Position and Held It Against Fierce German Counter Attacks.

London, April 20.—The British semi-weekly war narrative, dated April 19 and given out here today, reports the capture by the British of a German position on a hill west of Zwartelenie. Both sides lost men.

There has been increased activity among the heavier-than-air services, the report says. Four German aeroplanes having been brought to earth within three days.

"The improvement in the weather since the last report resulted in an increase in the activity of both our own and the enemy's air service," says the account. "Advantage in the exchanges has been with us. In the Ypres district four hostile aeroplanes have been brought down in the last three days, two by us and two by the French. Yesterday one of our airmen drove off three hostile aeroplanes, completing subsequently the reconnaissance on which he was engaged.

"Early on April 15 the enemy shelled our trenches near St. Eloi heavily, and exploded a mine which injured some of our parapets. No attack followed and the damage promptly was repaired.

"On April 16 the enemy exploded three mines in the La Bassee district, but they were quite harmless.

Capture of Hill 60.

"On the evening of April 17 we exploded a mine under Hill 60 on the Ypres-Comines railway, west of Zwartelene. This immediately was followed by an attack which gained possession of the whole of the enemy's trenches on the hill. The enemy suffered heavily from the explosion, and we took two officers and fifteen men prisoners. In spite of a heavy bombardment, which caused many casualties, the trenches captured were put in a state of defense during the night.

"The enemy renewed the bombardment towards morning and followed this at 6:20 a. m. with a determined counter attack. This attack was pressed home and stiff hand to hand fighting ensued. Our infantry, fighting with great gallantry and determination and well supported by artillery, drove off the enemy with complete success. Our losses were very heavy, but the Germans suffered still more severely, particularly from our machine guns, which caught them in close order in the open.

Germans Repulsed.

"Throughout the 17th the enemy repeatedly renewed his attacks, making desperate efforts to regain his position, which was of great importance. At one time they succeeded in gaining a footing on the southern slopes of the hill, but they were promptly driven back again. At nightfall the whole hill was in our hands, and the ground gained had been consolidated.

"This morning the enemy's attacks ceased, but they continued to bombard the hill.

"In the later fighting two more officers and thirty men were captured, making a total of four officers and forty-five men.

"The statement in a recent German official communication that we are using asphyxiating gases in the Ypres district is false. It doubtless was made to justify the use of these gases which have been freely employed by the enemy in their attacks on Hill 60. Germany signed a clause in The Hague convention eliminating the use of asphyxiating gases."

COLOR PLANTS ENLARGED TO MAKE DYESTUFFS

Washington, April 20.—More than a score of American firms are establishing new color works or enlarging their present plants to meet demands for dyestuffs to take the place of the supply that formerly came from Germany and now cut off by the war.

The department of commerce announced today that it had found a noteworthy progress in dyestuffs manufacture. The announcement said that of several plants increasing facilities for benzol production, one was at Woodward, Ala., and another was in the south.

ATLANTA'S STRIDES FROM DAY TO DAY

Work on laying the foundation for the Connally building, at Whitehall and Alabama streets, has been temporarily suspended, due to a discovery that the concrete bases which have been laid for support of pillars of the steel structure will not sustain the immense pressure.

A score of prominent New York engineers have been going over the grounds at the Connally building site for two days, testing the concrete bases, finding that they would sink as much as one inch when 9,000 pounds pressure was put on them.

The engineers are now consulting over the advisability of driving piles, which will go at least fifteen to twenty feet below the pit of the present excavations.

Considerable water lies underneath the ground where the Connally building will erected, this adding the source of the South river.

The engineers have not yet made a decision that piles will be necessary, but they decide that piles will be necessary, work will be suspended for a number of days longer until pile-driving machinery can be brought to Atlanta.

Building Totals $20,000.

There were no realty announcements of importance Tuesday, though there was an element of activity in building.

Building permits issued for the amount to about $20,000. Several residence permits and one business building permit were issued Tuesday.

Adair and Weinmeister have the contract for a $7,000 residence which Jesse Draper will build on his Druid Hills lot, 100x500, opposite the Druid Hills Golf club house, fronting on Leon avenue. This same firm has a contract for Fuller Hall, a residence at LaGrange, which will cost $50,000.

New York, April 20.—Cotton was nervous and unsettled, but rallied after an early decline and closed firm, net three points higher to two lower.

Relatively easy cables were followed by rather active Liverpool selling here, and after opening at a decline or 7 to 9 points, the local market worked some 9 to 12 points under yesterday's closing figures. Liverpool selling was attributed to straddlers owing to the recent narrowing of differences between the two markets, and besides offerings from that source, there was considerable local realizing or selling for a turn probably promoted by favorable weather.

Offerings, however, were well taken on the decline to 10.70 for October, or of about 17 points from yesterday's high records, and the market firmed up again before the end of the morning on Wall street, southern and commission house buying, which found less cotton offering after Liverpool's close. On the rally there was renewed liquidation, most of which seemed to come from Wall street sources and may have been influenced by unsettled conditions in the stock market, but a break to about the low point of the morning found support still in evidence, and prices reached the day's best point in late trading on local bull support and covering. Reports of continued firm southern spot markets probably helped the late rally, and bullish sentiment was encouraged by heavy semi-weekly shipments from interior points, and reports of continued activity and strength in domestic goods markets. Private wires from Memphis said crop conditions were ideal in that district and predicted that with continued good weather the June bureau would probably compare bearishly with last year's low figures. Augusta wired that spot cotton was strongly held with offerings small, and reports from Alabama said Carolina mills were bidding for off grades.

Spot cotton steady; middling uplands 10.45; no sales.

Recovers After Decline.

New Orleans, April 20.—Cotton was featured by a small reaction today which, however, was almost wholly recovered late in the session. Heavy offerings from the long side were in evidence and short sales pressed on the market at times. Bears were cautious and not inclined to follow up advantages. At critical times good support came from leading long interests and checked the downward movement.

In the early trading the market was easy on poor cables and good weather over the belt. Prices fell off to a level of 12 to 15 points under yesterday's close. There was much gossip concerning heavy liquidation of the long interest which created uneasiness among recent buyers. Around the middle of the morning new buying of a good character came in and the course of prices turned. Late in the session the trading months were four points up to two points down, compared with yesterday's last prices, and the close was unchanged to four points down, net.

Reports from the belt were that much planting was being done and that rains in the west were highly beneficial.

Jay, Bond & Co.

New York, April 20.—(Special.)—During the first hour today Liverpool sold freely here, which brought about a moderate decline in prices. At the decline, however, a good demand developed and with a cessation of Liverpool's selling values advanced about 12 points from their lowest. While present prices in some quarters of the trade are considered as discounting fully the commercial value of cotton and the future markets are meeting a larger supply of contracts, the market retains a firm tone owing to reports of a larger demand for spot cotton at the interior which, in turn, encourages fresh buying here.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.

New York, April 20.—(Special.)—On the receipt of many reports of improving trade conditions over the country this market has absorbed a large amount of hedge selling from Liverpool early during the day. There were also selling orders for Wall street account of cotton bought last week. It is a surprise that these offerings are absorbed in the manner they are by what appears to be orders from the mill brokers, or by small buyers who are impressed with the demand for cotton goods.

In the afternoon an attempt to repurchase some of the cotton sold in the morning quickly advanced prices.

Dry Goods.

New York, April 20.—Buying at the carpet auctions continued actively today. Cotton goods firm and less active because of unwillingness of mills to sell far ahead. Yarns firmer and more active. Knit goods for spot deliveries in good call.

Cotton Seed Oil.

New York, April 20.—Cotton seed oil was firm early on good buying of June, said to be for southern account and scattered short covering, but the list reacted later in absence of fresh absorbing power and with the decline in other markets. Final prices were 3 points higher for June and unchanged to 1 net lower for other months.

TONE IS BUOYANT IN STOCK MARKET

New York, April 20.—The stock market today reversed its course of the preceding session by closing with an almost buoyant tone, after several hours' of hesitation and uncertainty. Early restraints were found in the Rock Island receivership and further analysis of Chairman Gary's remarks to the United States Steel shareholders, but those considerations were set aside in the final hour when a flood of fresh buying orders lifted the entire list, some important shares making new records for the movement.

The late rise began with a movement in New Haven and it spread to investment issues, then to specialties of the class recently neglected, including Bethlehem Steel, which rose 11 points. It reached its best when the coppers began to show activity. New Haven's rise of 7 points was accompanied by a gain of 5 1-2 in New York, Ontario and Western, which it controls.

Bonds irregular, chiefly because of losses in Rock Island issues. Total sales, par value, aggregated $5,250,000.

United States bonds unchanged on call.

WHEAT UNSETTLED BY SUDDEN BREAK

Chicago, April 20.—Wheat became much unsettled today on a sudden break of 7 1-4 in May delivery. It was said to have been started by an error over a single order and was quickly followed by a nearly complete recovery, but peace rumors tended further to disturb confidence. Closed nervous, 5-8 to 3c under last night. Corn finished 1-8 off to 1-8@1-4 up; oats down 1-8@1-4 to 3-8@1-3, and provisions at a decline of 2 1-2@5 to 20c.

Most of the selling of May wheat was in small lots and of a stop loss character. Buying demand was limited on down turn and when support did develop, it was found that the market for May had become bare of offers. However, in the more active months, July and September, selling later increased in volume, with the supply coming largely from traders who had been bullish during the recent ten-day advance.

Hedging against increasing purchases of wheat to arrive here figured as a handicap on prices. There was selling of May and July against purchases of September, which resulted in relative strength for the more distant month.

Signs of export business served largely to offset in corn depression, that otherwise might have resulted from wheat's weakness.

Oats suffered from longs unloading, but not to anything like the same extent as wheat.

Scattered liquidation weighed down provisions.
